Kennedy Blueprint Seeks Fight Beyond A 'New Frontier'

Democratic Candidate Bluntly Rules Out Issue Of Religion

By JACK BELL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy took personal command of the Democratic party machinery today after bluntly laying the religious issue on the campaign line.

In a dramatic address accepting the first presidential nomination given to a Roman Catholic since 1928, Kennedy told a cheering throng of 60,000 in Los Angeles' sprawling Coliseum Friday night:

"I am telling you now what you are entitled to know: That my decisions on every public policy will be my own — as an American, a Democrat and a free man."

With the position fixed, Kennedy called his first general news conference since the party convention gave him its top nomination.

NEW FRONTIER

Kennedy strode to the podium of temporary stands to lay down a blueprint for a fighting campaign to carry America beyond the "New Frontier" into a space age he said demands "a new generation of leadership."

But as a preliminary to his promise to provide "creative Democratic leadership in the White House," the 43-year-old Massachusetts senator grasped the issue of his Catholicism by the forelock and shook it out for his GOP opponents to inspect.

"I hope no American, considering the critical issues facing this country, will waste his franchise by voting either for me or against me solely on account of my religious affiliation," he said.

APPROVAL ROARED

The shirt-sleeved crowd, which filled about two-thirds of the expansive reaches of seats roared back its approval.

And, speaking with scorn, Kennedy brought up the name of the man certain to lead the Republican Party against Kennedy in the fall—Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The Democratic candidate described Nixon as "a man who has spoken or voted on every side of every known issue."

"Mr. Nixon may feel it is his turn now, after the New Deal and the Fair Deal—but the cards will be cut before he deals," Kennedy said.

In Washington, Thruston B. Morton, Republican chairman, said Kennedy's card cutting reference "was prompted by the fact that he has been playing with his own stacked deck at the Democratic convention."

Kennedy Due Ike Foreign Policy Briefing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy today accepted President Eisenhower's offer to keep him abreast of foreign policy developments during the months of the presidential campaign.

The Democratic presidential nominee also announced:

1. His brother, Robert, will be his campaign manager.

2. He intends to meet with congressional leaders to map a legislative program before Congress resumes its session next month.

3. Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington is his choice for Democratic Chairman of the National Committee. He said he hoped Mrs. Margaret Price of Ann Arbor, Mich., would be named vice chairman.

Kennedy's declaration made it certain that Jackson and Mrs. Price would be named by the party's national committee, which is meeting here today.

Kennedy said he would ask Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 and 1956 Democratic candidate for president, and Rep. Chester Bowles of Connecticut to maintain liaison with the White House on foreign policy matter.

In preparation for the reconvening of the Senate Aug. 8 Kennedy said he plans to meet with Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the vice presidential nominee; House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, the House majority leader, and Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana.

U. N. force leader

U.N. Troops Start Task; Belgians Stay

Forces Leader Arrives, Starts Talks On Takeover

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Swedish Maj. Gen. Carl Carlsson Von Horn arrived today to take command of hundreds of United Nations troops pouring into the violence-wracked Congo to try to restore order.

Tunisian troops fanned out into Camp Leopold, where the Congolese Army first mutined, and mutineers, thinking they had come to fight for the Congo urged them to "attack the Belgians." The Tunisians remained impassive and stared at the excited, shouting Congolese.

Belgian paratroopers disregarded an order from Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba to leave the country, and continued to patrol the European sector of Leopoldville as Congolese youths cursed and jeered them.

There were reports that the 34-year-old Lumumba, buoyed by pledges of "assistance" from the Soviet Union, planned to transfer his capital from turbulent Leopoldville to Stanleyville in the interior which is a stronghold of his national Congolese movement party.

Gen. Von Horn began a round of conferences on ways to take over from Belgian forces.

Congolese showed no animosity toward the U.N. forces but they threw stones at the cars of white civilians, and some demonstrators for one tense moment threatened to stone trucks bringing in emergency American food supplies.

Belgian troops had been defeated in a clash at Matadi and Belgian authorities urged U.N. forces to head immediately for the port city and take control.

Leopoldville remained tense as more reports of rape and looting came in from the back country.

(Members of a group of 73 American missionaries and their families who reached safety in Accra, Ghana, said the missionaries were forced to lie on the ground and were trampled and beaten by Congolese soldiers who said, "Americans—so what. You're still white."

In the rebellious Katanga, where provincial Premier Moise Tshombe proclaimed the province independent of the Congo, opposition to the government of Lumumba spread.

Tshombe said the diamond-rich province of Kasai and part of Kivu province bordering on Katanga asked to join Katanga in an independent federation.

Muir Woods Group Lashes Park Purchase

The Muir Woods Park Improvement Assn. last night protested acquisition by Marin County of a nine-acre view property overlooking Muir Beach. The $4,000 needed to buy it from the federal government would be only the first step in a development cost that might total $40,000, said member Arthur K. Smart.

The property, located on a bluff above Muir Beach, is known both as the Frank Valley Military Reservation and the Muir Beach Overlook. The county board of supervisors has included $4,000 for its purchase in the 1960-61 budget.

The association also protested the state proposal for a freeway from Tamalpais Junction to Olema. Recent traffic counts showed fairly heavy tourist use on weekends, but hardly any use during weekdays, Miss Mildred Crobin said. The members felt the poor condition of Highway 1 north of Olema should be corrected before such a project was taken on.

Members also objected to the allocation of county tax funds to such private organizations as the Marin Rod and Gun Club which has received $1,000 for each of the past two years or more, Miss Corbin reported.

Details of the 1960 budget were discussed by the members with the guest speaker, Alan Bruce, assistant county administrator.

Marin Man Dies In Reno Street Fight

A wealthy Belvedere plastics company official died last night in front of Mapes Hotel in Reno after a fist-fight with a Marine, Associated Press and United Press International reported from Reno.

Victim is Rico D. Tully, 51, of 42 Peninsula Road, who was pronounced dead on arrival at the Washoe Medical Center in Reno. He was an official of the Western Plastics Co. of San Francisco.

Reno police are holding Robert Emmett Morney, 23, of Illinois, a Marine Reservist from Pickel Meadows Marine training area. Investigators said Moroney and Tully fought in front of the hotel.

Authorities said that Tully arrived at the downtown hotel from the airport with friends. One of the group went in to get a bell boy when Moroney wandered out of the hotel.

The Marine started to make insulting remarks to some of the women police said. A fight started, and Tully was knocked to the pavement.

According to neighbors in Belvedere, Tully and his wife Maria lived in San Francisco until 1955 when they moved to Belvedere. They have no children. Mrs. Tully was visiting in Sonoma this week.

Shocked neighbors today described Tully as "well liked and a very nice person." "Everybody loved him," said one neighbor.

Tully was part owner of the Western Plastics Co. in San Francisco.

Rash Of Grass Blazes Erupt, Damage Slight

A broken power line set off a 25-acre grass fire on the Mendoza Ranch in Pt. Reyes yesterday evening, but firemen controlled the blaze with no threat to life or property.

The fire on the open Mendoza ranch was only one of a half dozen grass and brush fires that erupted in various parts of the county.

County Fire Chief Charles R. Reilley and five men controlled the Mendoza Ranch blaze in about an hour. Firemen said no homes or lives were endangered. A power line leading to a pump dropped, and sparks ignited the grass shortly after 5 p.m.

The parade of fires yesterday started at 10:50 a.m. when Fairfax firemen doused flames in a vacant lot on Barker Court. About 15 feet of grass was scorched.

Driver Gene Lestanguet reported that a group of children had been seen playing in the area moments before the fire. They may have been playing with matches.

About 300 square feet of grass burned off a vacant lot in San Rafael about 12:50 p.m. The fire started from the roadside in a lot adjacent to 225 Prospect Drive.

It took five men and one piece of equipment about 20 minutes to quench the fire. Chief Clarence Johansen said the blaze was probably started by a match or cigarette discarded by a passing motorist. There was no immediate danger, the chief reported. He added that "grass fires were like bananas, they come in bunches."

Sparks from an unscreened incinerator started a fire in the backyard of the A. J. Collins residence at Lowell Street and Pine Hill Road at 2:20 p.m., Tamalpais Valley firemen reported.

The fire that burned close to the house destroyed 200 feet of grass and brush before being contained by six men and two trucks. It took 30 minutes to battle the blaze.

A small grass fire broke out on the slopes of San Anselmo's Redhill at 3:43 p.m. yesterday and the fire department report that they do not know what caused the blaze.

About 100 square feet of grass and brush was destroyed on the slope behind the Drake Market. The market was at no time in danger the fire department said. It took eight men using two pieces of equipment a little over an hour to douse the fire.

At 7:15 p.m., a patch of brush and grass five feet wide and five feet long burned in an old parking lot behind the Ross Apartments, 1118 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield.

A resident of the Ross Apartments told the firemen that children had been playing in the area prior to the fire reported Fireman Frank L. Berthinier. It took from 10 to 15 men about 10 minutes to control the blaze.

Taxpayer Suit Filed Against Cove Plans

A Sausalito taxpayer went to court yesterday to stop the city from buying Shelter Cove for waterfront recreation purposes.

Warren V. Glass, Sausalito insurance broker, filed a taxpayer's suit in Marin Superior Court, alleging that the proposed purchase is illegal. Glass contends the expenditure would be a waste of taxpayer's money, and is not strictly for the benefit of neighboring municipal purposes but for owners.

The city and the Sausalito Foundation, a newly formed organization, wants to buy Shelter Cove, located in the southern end of town. Total purchase price is $63,000.

LEARNED TO LIVE AT PEACE

Prisoner At Quentin 28 Years Will Be Released In September

By RANDALL GOULD

A San Quentin prisoner for 28½ years, two of them on Death Row, said today that when released Sept. 1 he means to "live outside as I have in here."

What this means to Jack D. Green, sentenced to death in 1932 for his part in killing a policeman, is that while "in here" he learned to live at peace with his God and his fellowman.

That is why years of torment and inner struggle brought him to constructive existence which has won parole and given him the chance to demonstrate outside prison walls that he is worthy of freedom.

This freedom, he hopes, will be enjoyed somewhere within the same Marin County where he has been so long. But he's mighty glad it will be "outside" for, as he puts it, "I'm not old yet but I'm not young any more either—my 58th birthday will be Sept. 23."

A quiet, reflective and poised man, Green is the last person one would pick as a convict. He describes himself as "changed entirely" from that day long ago when he entered Death Row for participation with Joseph F. Regan in killing a Los Angeles policeman while they were trying to rob a theater.

Regan, who shot the policeman, was hanged in 1933. Green was given a commutation to life in prison without possibility of parole in 1934. Green says he steadfastly believed he still had a chance. Finally it came this year, when Gov. Edmund G. Brown lifted the "no parole" edict and the Adult Author-

U.C. Plans Seismographic Station On Point Reyes

The University of California plans to construct a seismographic station on the Point Reyes peninsula, one of six to be linked by a telemeter network to a new central station on the Berkeley campus.

Purpose of the new stations is to provide information rapidly on the location of the epicenters of relatively small earthquakes below magnitude 5.

Financing of the project is under a $400,000 contract between the university and the Air Force Office of Scientific Research.

Dr. Perry Byerly, professor of seismology, and Dr. Don Tocher, research seismologist, said the Central California coastal area is an ideal locale for such a system.

Within this area they recorded 103 separate epicenters in 1955, 118 in 1956, and 113 in 1957.

Other new seismographic stations, besides the one at Point Reyes, will be built at Mount St. Helena, Santa Cruz, Los Banos in Merced County, Coalinga in Fresno County, and Jolon near the southern edge of Monterey County.

PROPOSED CHAPEL ANNEX—This is an architect's drawing of a $100,000 chapel annex to be built for the First Congregational Church of San Rafael. The site is located just west of Highway 101, opposite the proposed new San Rafael civic center site. The Marin County Planning Commission has already issued a church use permit and given its approval for the structure.

Marin Council Of Churches Sponsors Summer Programs

Many religious organizations lie dormant during the summer vacation months; however, one group in the county which has seemed to intensify during the season, is the Marin Council of Churches.

Led by president John C. Bonner of the San Geronimo Community Presbyterian Church, the council of churches has initiated, for the second summer in a row, worship services for Samuel P. Taylor State Park campers.

The outdoor services begin at 9 a.m. each Sunday at the Fire Circle amphitheater at the park's upper camp ground.

"It is well received and attended by our campers," said Asst. Park Supervisor Edward J. Nash.

A different pastor from churches represented in the council preaches at the service each Sunday which this season has had an average attendance of 50 outdoorsmen, said Rev. Bonner.

The council's youth program at the present consists of the sponsorship of a chaplain for the county's Juvenile Hall, now called Loma Alta.

The program began under the leadership of retired engineer John Thompson of Sausalito, a member and past president of the council. Last June he and other council members became aware of the population boom in the hall. The council decided to establish a budget for the sponsorship, and appointed San Francisco Theological Seminary student Lowel King as chaplain. Senior King is now assisted by Ronald Griffin, a junior at the Golden Gate Baptist Seminary.

The chaplain's program at the hall consists more of counseling and recreation direction, than of religious services, said Thompson.

"When we first placed a chaplain in the hall, we thought he would not make much headway; but it was found the youngsters desired to know about Christ and the importance of spiritual values in their lives," said Thompson.

Rev. Bonner reported that the council needs two piano's for the chaplains program.

"Anyone who would like to play a part in the council's activities may do so by giving or loaning the organization a second-hand piano," said Rev. Bonner.

Texas Singers To Appear In San Rafael

The Bel Canto Singers of the Boles Home for orphans in Quinlan, Texas, will present a program in the San Rafael Church of Christ tomorrow at 2:30 p.m.

The program will consist of gospel songs, hymns and Negro spirituals, said Leo H. Bryant of the church.

The chorus is on a summer tour which will include 80 appearances in 13 western states and Canada.

The home in Quinlan, Texas is one of 24 orphan homes supported by the Church of Christ. An additional home is to be established in Vacaville, Solano County, soon, said Bryant.

Marin Churchmen Made Officials

Rev. Donald H. Baldwin of the Methodist Church of San Rafael was elected secretary of the Western Jurisdictional Conference of the Methodist Church held in San Jose this week.

Selected treasurer of the conference was Frank Webber member of the Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

Massachusetts Student Slated For St. Paul's

Guest preacher at morning services tomorrow at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael will be student Donald Hart of the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Cambridge, Mass.

Hart is presently engaged in the program of clinical training, this summer, with inmates at San Quentin Prison.

Ground To Be Broken For Education Annex

Ground breaking ceremonies will be held tomorrow for the first unit of a $100,000 chapel annex of the First Congregational Church of San Rafael to be built on a five-acre site at North San Pedro and Merrydale Roads.

The annex, the first unit of which is to be completed by October, will include a chapel, Christian education building and a social parlor. A full sized sanctuary is proposed for an area several hundred yards below the hilltop annex, said Pastor Paul R. Peterson. At present the church sanctuary is located on E Street in San Rafael. He said the proposed new sanctuary is for "the distant future."

Tomorrow's ceremonies at 12:30 p.m., will be led by Pastor Peterson, John Thomson Jr., a former associate moderator of the Northern California Congregational Conference, and William W. Weeks, San Rafael contractor and chairman of the Church Building Committee.

The site, west of Highway 101, near the Santa Venetia underpass, was graded last week. Church members will voluntarily build the first unit which will be the Christian education building.

Weeks will direct building operations. He will be assisted by building committee member Ronald E. Baines, also a San Rafael contractor.

The entire chapel annex will include 7,500 square feet, and is hoped to be completed within a year's time, said Rev. Peterson.

He said a new electric organ will be installed in the chapel and that the social parlor will have kitchen facilities. At the upper end of the site a softball field has been graded and will be used by the Youth Fellowship of the church for its programs.

When the entire structure is completed, early Sunday morning worship services and Sunday school will be held there, with the 11 a.m. service continuing to be held at the E Street sanctuary, said Rev. Peterson.

Japan Leaders To Be Guests Of Seminary

The dean of a Japanese seminary and a missionary educator from Japan will be guests next week of the Golden Gate Baptist Seminary.

Dean Shuishi Ozaki of the Japan Baptist Seminary in Fuuoka on the Island of Kyushu, and Dr. Edwin B. Dozier, professor of religion at the Fukuoka seminary, will both arrive in San Francisco Monday.

Both men have been interpreters of the Japanese languages for Billy Graham.

Rev. Ozaki is coming to the Golden Gate seminary from a tour of the Southern United States after attending the Baptist World Congress in Rio de Janeiro last week.

Dr. Dozier is flying directly from Japan and will fulfill a number of speaking engagements throughout the Bay Area next week, said Carl M. Halverson of the Golden Gate seminary.

"Dozier is considered one of the leading missionary educators among Japan's 2,500 Protestant missionaries now in that country," said Halverson.

Dr. Dozier's father, the late C. K. Dozier, was a teacher in Japan, and founder of the 150-student seminary in Fukuoka, where Edwin Dozier was born.

Rev. Ozaki, who will only spend a day in the Bay Area and then leave for Honolulu, is a graduate of Seinan University in Japan, and of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., where he received his Bachelor of Divinity degree.

Both men are scheduled to appear at 9:45 a.m. at Broadus Hall at the seminary.

"They are expected to lecture on the Baptist Congress in South America, and on the recent student demonstrations in Japan," said Halverson.

Following the lecture a reception will be held for them in the seminary administration building, he said.

Mill Valley Church Hosts Japan Guest

Missionary to Japan Arbie Patscke will be guest speaker at both morning worship services tomorrow at the Peace Lutheran Church of Mill Valley.

Patschke spent five years on the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido and is the former pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church in Asahigawa, Japan.

He and his family are on a year's furlough in the United States.

Tulare County Parson To Speak In Marin

Rev. Burris Morford, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Porterville, Tulare County, will be the guest preacher at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo's morning worship services tomorrow.

Rev. Morford is filling the pulpit for church pastor Jerald H. Traeger, who with his family is taking a vacation in Roseburg, Ore.

60,000 Attend Convention Windup; All In All They Saw Quite A Show

By SAUL PETT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some 60,000 people went out to see the Democrats wind up their national convention last night in a king size baseball field noted for its "Chinese" homers.

They saw quite a show.

They saw the Democrats rake the Republicans on land and in the air and for awhile it seemed the Republicans were counter-attacking from the sky.

They saw enough movie stars and marching bands and motor cycle cops riding in formation to the "Dragnet" theme music to remake "Ben Hur" in modern dress.

And, of course, they saw the nominee, John F. Kennedy, make his acceptance speech.

Sen. Stuart Symington even went so far as to explain why Kennedy beat Symington and Stevenson and Lyndon B. Johnson for the top spot.

"How did he do it?" Symington said. "He did it because he has just a little more courage, stamina, wisdom and character than the rest of us."

Kennedy also got high praise from Johnson, his running mate.

Early in the proceedings, sky-writing planes puffed propaganda over the Coliseum — "stop waste" and "cut debt."

Several speakers were bothered by helicopters overhead. Convention Chairman LeRoy Collins turned his antiaircraft fire on them:

"Just like the Republicans, they just whirl round and round without getting anywhere."

But it was Stevenson who had the roughest time getting off the ground. Just as he was about to start his speech introducing Kennedy, he looked into the setting sun and there out of the West came a high school band and a score of Indian-costumed youngsters.

It was the kind of goof-up we used to associate with the Dodgers—not the Los Angeles version but the old, old Brooklyn Dodgers when the Bums used to end up with three runners on second and outfielders were getting knocked on the head by fly balls.

Truman Calls For Closed Ranks, Work For Kennedy

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI)—Former President Harry Truman said last night, "The Democratic Party must now close ranks and go to work" to elect Sen. John F. Kennedy president.

In a telegram to Gov. Leroy Collins of Fla., chairman of the Democratic National Convention, Truman pledged his "personal services in any way that I may be asked."

Truman, who vigorously opposed Kennedy for the nomination, showed full approval for the Kennedy-Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson ticket. His message was released here simultaneously with reading of the telegram to the convention in Los Angeles.

"The restoration of Democratic leadership and direction to the nation is essential in the face of the world situation," Truman said.

"No differences among us, whatever they may be, can be important enough to impair our unity at a time when the security and the survival of this nation and of the free world are in jeopardy."

On July 2, Truman charged that the convention was rigged in Kennedy's favor.

Boston Plans Big Salute

BOSTON (UPI) — When Johnny comes marching home again tomorrow this city will deliver the wildest salute it has produced in years.

"We are going to turn the city inside out to welcome the next president," Deputy Mayor John McMorrow, a Democrat, said yesterday after he was put in charge of the welcoming party for Sen. John F. Kennedy.

When the Kennedy plane arrives over the airport, fire department boats will send up red, white and blue sprays. McMorrow adds that he is working on an assortment of bells and whistles that should bring anyone within 50 miles to attention.

Novelist Marquand Dies At 66

NEWBURY, Mass. (UPI)—Pulitzer Prize winning novelist John P. Marquand, 66, died of a heart attack in his sleep last night at his home here. He had been in good health up to the time of his death.

The author of best sellers "The Late George Apley," "Wickford Point" and "H. M. Pulham Esq." won the Pulitzer Prize in 1949.

All his books, with few exceptions, dealt with the Boston world of respectability, the world in which he grew up as an impoverished member of an old New England family with its roots in Newburyport, a picturesque seacoast town.

Marquand was twice married and twice divorced. He leaves two children by his first wife, the former Christina Sedgwick, and three by his second wife, the former Adelaide Hooker whom he married in 1937. They were divorced in 1958.

A son by the first marriage is John P. Marquand Jr., who writes under the name of John Phillips. The other children are his sister Christina and half-sister Blanche, and half-brothers Timothy F. and Elon.

Owners Approve Merger Of Banks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Ransom M. Cook of Wells Fargo American Trust Co. said today stockholders of his bank and Northern Counties Bank have approved a merger.

With about 16 million dollars in deposit, Northern Counties has branches in Marysville, Yuba City and Gridley and Beale Air Force Base.

Wells Fargo American Trust, with deposits of $2,300,000,000 ranks as the nation's 11th largest bank. It has 118 branches in Northern California.

The merger calls for exchange of each share of Northern Counties Bank stock for two-thirds of a share of the stock of Wells Fargo.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Finch Jury Chosen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury of eleven women and one man has been selected to hear the second murder trial of Dr. R. Bernard Finch and his sweetheart, Carole Tregoff.

Ten housewives are on the jury—which must weigh evidence in the slaying last July of Barbara Jean Finch, the doctor's wife.

The handsome surgeon and his former receptionist were tried on the same charges — murder and conspiracy — earlier this year. The trial ended in a jury deadlock.

It took 14 court days to select the new panel. Next week four alternates will be chosen.

Freedom For Gabon

PARIS (UPI) — The African colony of Gabon, where Dr. Albert Schweitzer has his famed hospital, yesterday became the 11th member of the French community to gain freedom. Under President Charles de Gaulle's plan, Gabon becomes independent, but still retains of its own choice, close economic and political ties with France.

Jump Called Off

NEWPORT BEACH (AP) — A vacationing psychiatrist left a swordfish dinner and talked down a would-be suicide swinging and yelling atop a 10-story structure last night.

Police and firemen closed off the area when a husky young fishing boat worker was spotted atop the skeleton structure of a new apartment building.

Dr. Richard Renneker, dining with his wife and friends at a nearby restaurant, and an unidentified Catholic priest walked to within three stories of where the man perched.

Dr. Renneker told the man it was his life and he could throw it away if he wanted to.

"You're ruining my dinner, you know that," Dr. Renneker said.

Norman Harvey Battey, 24, Costa Mesa, came down, and was taken to a hospital.

Nassau Diocese

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pope John XXIII today elevated the vicariate apostolic of the Bahamas to the status of a diocese immediately subject to the Holy See.

Bishop Paul L. Hagarty, O.S.B., who had been assigned a titular diocese while serving as vicar apostolic of the Bahamas, was transferred from the titular see to the newly made diocese which has the title Diocese of Nassau.

Piranha Ban Sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State officials are alarmed that Californians are stocking home aquariums with South American piranha fish, which devour people, cows, other fish, or anything they can get at.

The Fish and Game Department today announced it will ask the next Legislature to ban importation of piranha.

Murder Charges Filed

OAKLAND (UPI) — Murder charges were filed yesterday against two men involved in the fatal shooting of a University of California coed.

The victim, Sonja (Sunny) Lillian Hoff, 21, was shot in the head Wednesday as she studied in the University library in Berkeley.

Her assailant, Mohammed Abdullah, 21, then shot himself in the head. The other figure in the killing is Martin Howowitz, 34, a Berkeley chemist who admitted giving Abdullah the weapon.

Flight Remembered

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Ernie Smith ordered an extra martini when he took his wife out to dinner last night.

It was their quiet way of commemorating the 33rd anniversary of the first civilian flight across the Pacific from California to Hawaii.

Smith and Emory Bronte accomplished it July 15, 1927. They barely made it when gas ran out and they glided the last few miles to land in a tree on the island of Molokai.

Smith was then flying the mail on one of the early U.S. airmail routes and Bronte was a junior officer on a merchant ship. He came along with Ernie as navigator.

Rockefeller Move

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania Draft Rockefeller Committee opened headquarters in Philadelphia yesterday—minus much money but with hopes.

Edward L. Howard, of Doyles-town, co-chairman, said the committee has less than $1,000 to try to attract support for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York as the Republican presidential nominee.

S. F. Death Rate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's death rate last year was far above the national average, the city health department reported.

Leading causes of death were cirrhosis of the liver, heart disease, malignancies, vascular lesions and accidents other than traffic.

LODGE, MORTON ON TAP

Rocky Again Says No To No. 2 Spot

CHICAGO (UPI) — Republicans preparing for their national convention talked wishfully today of a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket but New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller restated he would not accept the GOP vice presidential nomination.

Republican National Chairman Thruston Morton, who was to arrive in Chicago today to take charge of convention arrangements, said he would not badger Rockefeller into accepting second spot behind Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

But the Kentucky Senator said, "There are millions of Americans throughout the length and breadth of this land who would like to see him on the ticket. If this should develop, it would make a very formidable ticket indeed."

Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) went even farther, saying a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket "would sweep the country" against the Democratic Kennedy-Johnson slate.

A spokesman for the governor also said Rockefeller was not coming here Monday to steal Nixon's pre-convention thunder.

"The governor's purpose . . . is the same as was announced a week ago," the spokesman said. "He will address the Republican platform committee on Tuesday and will return to New York. Any other interpretations are erroneous."

In Washington, Republican leaders believe Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, or Morton would strengthen the GOP ticket as Nixon's running mate.

Others liked by Nixon for his ticket mate are Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton, Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson and Chicago industrialist Charles Percy, chairman of the GOP platform committee.

There also has been some Republican sentiment for Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Welfare Secretary Arthur S. Flemming.

Halleck Rips Demo Ticket As Cynical

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, House Republican leader and 1960 GOP National Convention chairman, today derided the Kennedy-Johnson ticket as a cynical combination housed under a "preposterous" Democratic party platform.

"Combining Sen. Lyndon Johnson, a veteran conservative, on a ticket with Sen. John Kennedy, a fledgling liberal, represents a political deal made with callous disregard for party integrity and principle," Halleck said.

"How can both Kennedy and Johnson live amicably under the preposterous platform hammered together in Los Angeles? We certainly know it runs diametrically counter to Sen. Johnson's often expressed views.

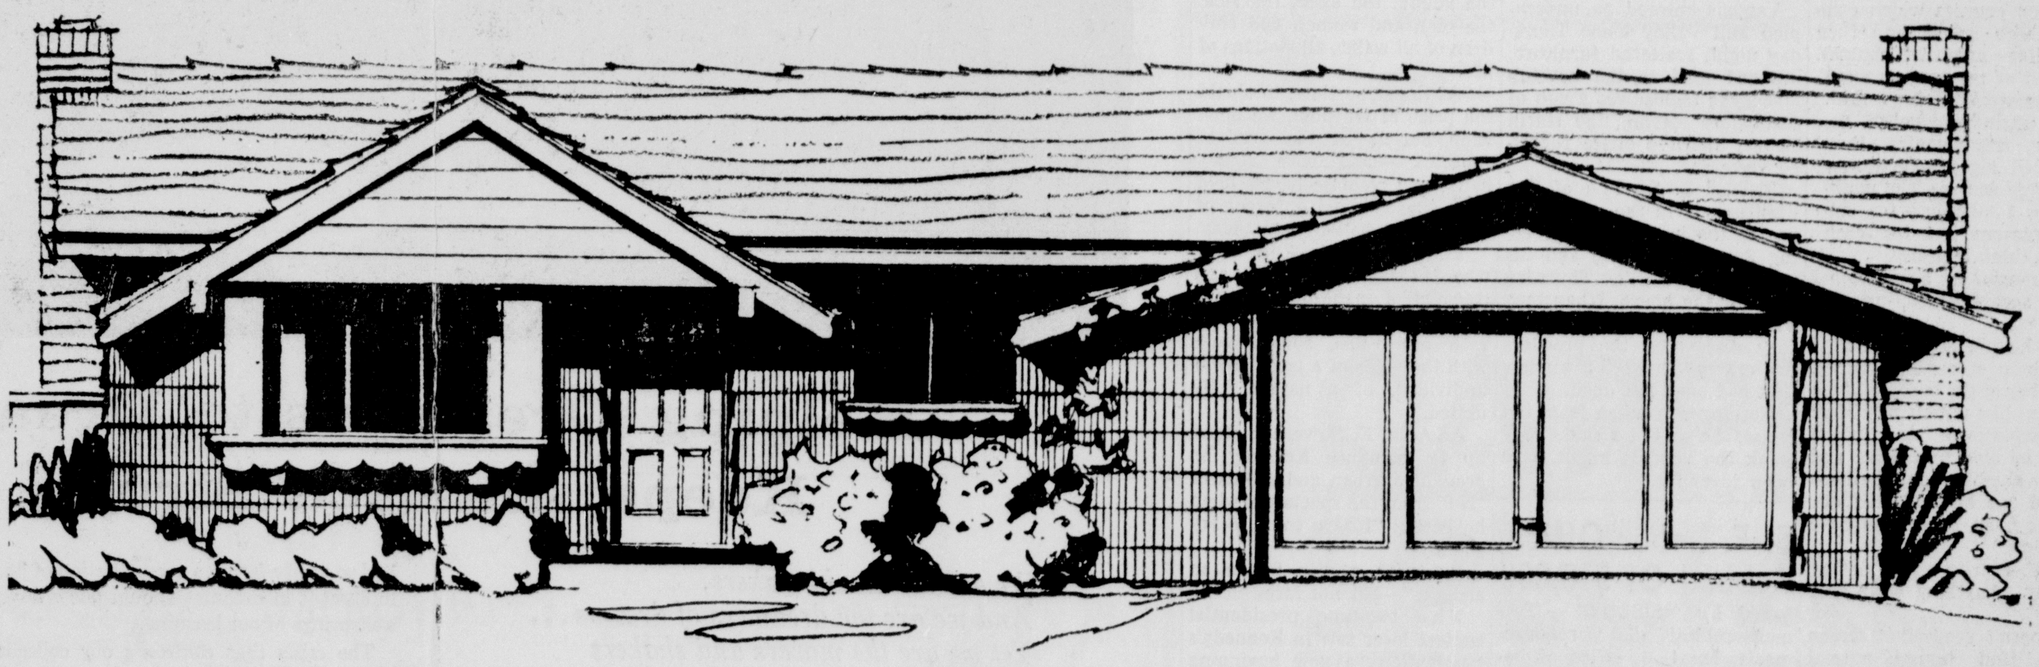

"I firmly believe that during the coming presidential campaign, the cynicism of this arrangement will become thoroughly apparent to the American people, and will work to the disadvantage of the Democratic standard bearers."

Kentfield Man Gets Architect Firm Post

Lee S. Windheim of 216 South Ridgewood Road, Kentfield, head of the San Francisco architectural firm of Leo A. Daly Associates, has been named vice president of the Leo A. Daly Co. in Omaha, Neb.

Soldiers Jailed For Beating Airman In San Rafael

Two soldiers attached to the Army Nike site north of Santa Venetia were jailed early today after a San Rafael police officer stopped them from beating a Hamilton Air Force Base airman at Fourth Street and Tamalpais Avenue.

A/1c Herman F. Spath, 29, of the 78th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, was treated at San Rafael General Hospital for bruises on chest, and bites on the nose and ear. He had been badly kicked, hospital officials reported.

The airman's condition was described as "satisfactory" after treatment. He was transferred to the base hospital and later released.

Arrested on charges of assault and battery, drunkenness and disturbing the peace were Robert Dickey, 21, and Harry Hosey, 19, both attached to "D" battery at the Nike site.

Two other soldiers from the Nike site were stopped as they tried to leave the area in their car. Officer Charles Hickey stopped Jack H. Cross, 19, and Franklin D. Edwards, 24, then found Dickey and Hosey beating Spath.

Hickey was assisted by Sheriff's deputy George Tsegeletos, who was passing at the time.

Police said the quarrel between the Army men and the airman had started at closing time at the Redwood Bar.

Cross and Edwards were returned to the Nike base.

Fairfax Couple's Car Strikes Tree

A Fairfax couple complained of neck injuries last night after their car was struck in the rear by another auto at Third and A Streets, San Rafael, police reported.

Joseph K. Miller, the driver, of 13 Baywood Court, and his wife, Betty Jean, went to Marin General Hospital, then were referred to their own doctor.

Miller said he was stopped in a line of traffic going west on Third Street when he was struck by a car driven by Marlene Ann Burke of 88 Elm Avenue, San Anselmo. The latter said she was going about 10 or 15 miles per hour and thought the traffic was still moving. She said she was blinded by the setting sun.

PRISONER

ity granted Green parole to work in the San Francisco Bay Area.

"It was when I went off Death Row that I began to change," said Green. "Father George A. O'Meara, then chaplain and now with St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael, was the man who changed my life more than any other person."

He said he doesn't wish to discuss religion but that he returned to the Roman Catholic Church of his forefathers and found spiritual haven. As to his relations with the temporal world:

"I grew up in a 'lost generation,' same as this one calls itself, and I ran around with the wrong people. We were too smart, with a lot of knowledge but not much sense.

"What I did in here was to find I had the wrong sense of values.

"Yes, today I'm tranquil. That is why I can say that outside I want to live as I have learned to live in here, finding my own way. If there is anything I can contribute, I'd like that."

Green has been clerk for San Quentin's Catholic chaplain for 5 years, choir director for 20, and a member of the fire department, with a record clear of any sort of infraction of prison rules for 22 years. He has taken courses which completed high school and then took college extension courses.

"Most of my courses were mathematical," he said. "They included algebra, geometry, trigonometry, then advanced algebra, and now a geology course. The mathematics I took just for cultural reasons. It helps teach one to think logically.

"My music? As a musician I'm not accomplished, just adequate.

"It's been suggested that I might help others by writing. A member of the board told me that men like myself who have had experience in prison should be able to analyze and make valuable contributions. He said 'we have to find our answers from those who have done time.'

"Well, I write a good letter, they say. Anything I can do I will."

It doesn't seem that Green would find himself a total stranger to the world outside, for he has read, talked and reflected. He has quiet but positive views on such things as communism, of which he says: "The Communists should finally bring us to our senses by their violence. Our people will see the truth, I feel, but it will be a narrow squeak.

"Spain and Portugal seem to be the only countries that have sealed Communism out altogether. It takes only a noisy minority, you know."

Still not entirely sure just what he'll do outside, Green is unworried.

"I am not interested in money," he explained. "Of course I know I must care for myself, and I shall. But what I can do in a broader way I shall also. Here in prison I have been recognized favorably for such things as I've been able to accomplish. I hope this can continue."

DOG'S METTLE ISN'T LIKELY TO GET MEDAL

CEDAR CREEK, Mo. (AP)— Buster isn't the type of dog that follows little lost boys and steers them safely home.

In fact, said Donnie Hughey, 8, after being missing from his grandfather's farm for 20 hours, he would not have been lost at all if he hadn't been following Buster.

Thursday night Donnie huddled close to Buster to keep warm.

"I would have been afraid if Buster hadn't been there," Donnie related yesterday, "but I had to keep poking him all night so he would stay awake and guard me."

Vandals Scatter Furniture, Put Mud In Bathtub

Vandals entered an unoccupied Mill Valley home Thursday night, scattered furniture, dumped mud in the bathtub and made themselves a cup of tea before leaving, the Marin County sheriff's office reported yesterday.

Richard E. Smith of San Francisco is in the process of buying the home at 121 Morning Sun Avenue. He and his wife worked all day Thursday cleaning the house. When they arrived yesterday morning, they discovered the prowlers had entered through a window that had been left open.

Nothing was taken from the house, deputies said. They think the vandals might have been juveniles.

S. F. Labor Office Robbed Of $10,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two men robbed the warehousemen's Local 6 office of between $8,000 and $10,000 yesterday.

A polite, soft spoken man pointed a gun at Anne Medic, 35, and then herded her and three other employees into another room. His companion took the money from cash drawers.

Mrs. Medic said one man visited the union headquarters previously on the pretext of seeing a business agent.

KENNEDY

Kennedy defined the "New Frontier"—which he obviously hoped to make as much of a catch phrase as the New Deal and Fair Deal had become—as "a frontier of unknown opportunities and perils — a frontier of unfilled hopes and threats."

'UNCHARTED AREAS'

"Beyond that frontier are uncharted areas of science and space, unsolved problems of peace and war, unconquered pockets of ignorance and prejudice, unanswered questions of poverty and surplus," he said.

He said the times demand "invention, innovation, imagination, decision."

"For courage—not complacency—is our need today, leadership, not salesmanship," he said. "Are we up to the task —are we equal to the challenge? Are we willing to match the Russian sacrifice of the present for the future—or must we sacrifice our future in order to enjoy the present?"

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas called for an effective, dynamic, responsible government, one that is not "asleep at the switch," in his acceptance speech.

'GENTLE HANDS'

"With gentle hands," he said, "we must minister to the needs of the meek among us—the young, the aged, the sick, the men and women and children of all walks, all stations of life.

"At the same time, to shield the prize of freedom, we must keep muscle in the arm of America — and with steady hands and resolute hearts hold back the aggressive forces of evil which challenge us today.

"America must — to those who threaten the peace and freedom of mankind — speak with a decisive voice, speak with one voice, speak again with the voice of a government undivided, of a nation fully united."

As Adlai E. Stevenson stood up to introduce Kennedy he brought a groan and shouts of "No" from the spectators when he began: "I have come to say goodby—"

But with a grin Stevenson added: "—but not farewell."

The two-time presidential contest loser saw in Kennedy's nomination "a new beginning for the Democratic party and for our country."

Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, introduced Johnson.

Helping Dreamers to Dream Keeps America Strong

"We are the music-makers,
And we are the dreamers of dreams...
Yet we are the movers and shakers
Of the world forever, it seems."
Arthur O'Shaughnessy, The Music-Makers

Throughout our history as a nation—indeed, throughout the history of all mankind—it has been the dreamers of better ways of doing things who have made our lives more worthwhile.

And yet the dreamer of today, if he is to contribute to the betterment of his fellow man, must be an educated dreamer. He must have assimilated the knowledge and undergone the training that enable him to dream beyond the present, beyond the knowledge we have now.

Can there possibly be a better reason for strengthening the sources of knowledge—colleges and universities?

It seems incredible that a society such as ours which has profited so vastly from an accumulation of knowledge—and from the fulfillment of dreams—should allow anything to threaten these wellsprings of our learning.

The crisis that confronts our colleges threatens to weaken seriously their ability to transmit the knowledge and to encourage the dreams that will keep America strong.

The crisis is composed of several elements: a salary scale that is driving away from teaching the kind of person best qualified to teach; overcrowded classrooms; and mounting college applications that will double in less than ten years.

Help the colleges and universities of your choice. Help them plan for stronger, better-paid faculties and for expansion. The returns will be greater than you think.

If you want to know more about what the college crisis means to you, and what you can do to help, write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, N.Y.

BRITAIN BATTLE

20 Year Ago A Decisive Battle Raged

(The Battle of Britain began in earnest July 16, 1940, 20 years ago today, when Hitler issued an order that the British Air Force was to be eliminated to pave the way for the invasion of England. It was one of the most decisive battles ever fought.)

By PETER KNOX

LONDON (UPI) — "The gratitude of every home in our island, in our empire and indeed throughout the world, except in the abodes of the guilty, goes out to the British Airmen, who, undaunted by odds, unwearied in their constant challenge and mortal danger, are turning the tide of world war by their prowess and their devotion.

"Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Winston Churchill thus spoke, immortalizing "the few" who saved Britain and the Allies from their closest scrape in World War II.

The few who saved this country in the Battle of Britain 20 years ago are far fewer today.

Many did not survive the battle which lasted four summer months — between July and October.

The claims and counterclaims of the Germans and the British have now been shaken down to show that Britain lost 915 aircraft and the Germans 1,733 in the decisive aerial dogfights over southern England.

It was on July 16, 1940, that Hitler said:

"The English air force must be eleminated to such an extent that it will be incapable of putting up any substantial opposition to the invading troops."

The order meant long hours of combat for the British pilots. Men shot down by the Germans one day were often flying again the next — if they were lucky enough to bale out safely.

Boys became aces overnight and took leaps in rank that alarmed officers of other services.

On the ground they developed a reputation for indifference to air force rules. They dressed rakishly and saluted rarely. But their efforts in the air defeated Hitler's purpose and helped change the course of the war.

The battle of Britain men are now entering middle age. Very few are still flying. Most survivors are quiet family men cursing the wet skies over England this summer that ruin their holidays or their gardens.

Larkspur Eatery Sold To Couple

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Gay have purchased Muriel's Restaurant at 1125 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, from Murrel E. Hoopes. Final payment and change of title will take place Aug. 10.

Recently married and formerly resident in San Francisco, both the buyers have had restaurant experience. Gay was former owner of a chain of restaurants on the east coast and his wife, Mrs. Alice F. Gay, has been in restaurant business in both Burlingame and San Francisco.

They have moved into a temporary Marin County home and are planning purchase of a house in Kentfield.

Machinists Vote To End Missile Strike

PASO ROBLES (AP)—Members of the International Assn. of Machinists last night voted to end a strike against Lockheed's missile installations.

Approximately 5,800 members of the machinists union voted by a 3-2 margin to accept Lockheed's latest contract proposal.

Strikers will go back to work Monday.

The walkout began June 26 at Lockheed Missiles and Space Division installations at Van Nuys, Sunnyvale, Santa Cruz and Vandenberg Air Force Base, all in California.

The new contract covers approximately 10,500 hourly employees at these installations and in Hawaii and at Holloman Air Force Base, N. M. The Hawaii and Holloman employees did not walk out.

The new contract provides for a 4-cent-an-hour increase this year, retroactive to June 13, and a 3-cent-an-hour increase next year.

It also freezes 6 cents in cost-of-living increases previously granted to workers into the base pay, and provides for new cost-of-living increases after July 1961 if the cost of living goes up.

Other benefits include a layoff benefit of $50 for each year's employment, up to a maximum of $500, and fringe benefits.

Average before the strike was $2.66 per hour.

Lockheed makes the Navy's Polaris submarine missile and is prime contractor for the Discoverer, Samos and Midas satellite systems.

Ike Vacation Interrupted By Crises

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP)—President Eisenhower's third summer vacation in this seaside resort area is taking on the same pattern as the other two. International or domestic crises keep punctuating his recreation.

Just as in 1957 and 1958, Eisenhower's current stay, which began July 7, has been marked by troubles which follow a president everywhere. Nevertheless, Eisenhower has been able to golf or fish every day but one, when it rained.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev pledged support to Cuba's Castro regime.

Bloody rioting broke out in the newly independent Congo Republic and the Soviet Union accused the United States of trying to undermine Congo freedom.

Cuba took its quarrel with the United States to the U. N. Security Council, and this country welcomed a chance to outline Eisenhower's charges of Castro regime hostility toward the United States. The hearing before the council is scheduled to start Monday.

The summer White House announced yesterday that Eisenhower and Herter will meet in Newport Tuesday for a new review of world problems—their second since the President arrived.

Kesselring Dies; Nazi Army Leader

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany—Former Field Marshall Albert Kesselring, one of the military giants of Germany in World War II and a convicted war criminal, died today after a long illness. He was 74.

Kesselring died in a nursing home, 20 years to the day after he became a field marshal.

His death was announced by the "Stahlhelm" (steel helmet) veterans' organization, which he headed until his death. The organization attributed his death only "to serious illness which he contacted while a prisoner."

At the end of World War II Kesselring was commander of all German troops in what was still called the Mediterranean area.

A British military court condemned him to death in 1947 in Venice for the execution of partisans.

The sentence was later changed to life imprisonment and he was eventually released altogether. In 1952, he became "Stahlhelm" leader.

PETITION IN COURT

Hayden Asks To Take His Children Overseas

Actor-adventurer Sterling Hayden of Belvedere wants more elbow room—to travel overseas with his new wife and five children.

But this time, he's coming into Marin Superior Court for legal clearance to assure smooth sailing instead of trying another South Seas jaunt like the one that got him into trouble with the law last year.

When Hayden and his former wife Betty Ann divorced in Los Angeles in 1956, the divorce order provided that "neither party shall remove the children from the State of California without the consent of the other party or an order of this court."

Through his attorney, Thomas P. Boyd, Hayden has filed a petition in Marin Superior Court asking that the restriction on his children's travel be removed so that he can take them out of California. The hearing is set for 2 p.m. on July 25.

The strapping actor says he had to reject $60,000 and $65,000 job offers last month because they would have taken him overseas. "Where I go, the children go," Hayden explained in his affidavit in Marin Superior Court.

In a frank disclosure of his financial status, Hayden explains in his affidavit that when he returned from Polynesia on Nov. 15, 1959, he was $90,000 in debt. He has reduced that to $75,000.

"I have remarried and a child is expected next February." (In a Marin ceremony, Hayden married New York socialite Catherine Devine McConnell last March 10. She has a son, age 8, who lives with Hayden and his four children.)

Hayden says he has contracted with Doubleday and Co. Inc. of New York for publication of a book to be completed by March 1 next year. He explained he must travel frequently in connection with his writings.

Last month, he was approached to make a film in Yugoslavia. It offered $65,000 for seven weeks of work, with travel and living expenses for a party of seven, the actor revealed. "I had to reject an offer from Metro in Culver City of $60,000 for another fim to be made in Italy."

"It is my understanding," Hayden concludes, "that an American citizen is free to work when, where and as he will, so long as he conforms to the law of this and other lands."

Mrs. Betty Ann Hayden, the actor's former wife, is opposing the actor's latest plea for freedom to travel with his children. She contends he is perfectly capable of earning enough money here without going abroad.

Hayden himself has said he expects to get $100,000 from his book, and is constantly offered film and television parts at salaries of $5,000 for a half hour and on up," she contends. She alleges the actor can easily make $150,000 a year here.

Her attorney, Chester L. Smith of Beverly Hills, asks Marin Superior Court to continue the July 25 hearing to a later date so that she can consult with a proposed new lawyer in San Francisco.

Hayden's attorney, Boyd, declared yesterday that the July 25 court hearing is set and he intends to proceed with the request for Hayden's freedom to travel with his children.

Lyric Soprano To Sing At Ross Center

Lyric soprano Gwen Curatilo will sing at an Opera Pops Concert July 24 at 4 p.m. at the Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Mrs. Curatilo, a resident of Terra Linda, was a regional winner of the 1953 San Francisco Opera debut auditions. She is currently appearing in the San Francisco Conservatory of Music presentation of The Consul by Menotti.

Proceeds from the concert will be used to underwrite the training program of the Merola Memorial Fund, a joint project with the San Francisco Opera Guild.

Mrs. Curatilo will be interviewed by Kitty Oppenheimer on radio station KTIM at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Enlists In Navy

Jeffrey Clarke Davis, 17, son of Edward Emerson Davis of 78 Sonora Way, Corte Madera, has enlisted in the Navy at the Marin County Navy Recruiting Station at 1116 Fourth Street, San Rafael. He was sent to the San Diego Naval Training Center for nine weeks of recruit training.

Scores Of Marin Youngsters Enter Livestock In Sonoma County Fair

Forty-four Marin County Four-H Club boys and girls, 31 of them from Novato, have entered a total of 112 head of sheep, swine and cattle in the 23rd annual Sonoma County Fair and Livestock Exposition, July 21-30 in Santa Rosa.

Again leading the Novato contingent are Jon and Sandra Pronzini, who have previously exhibited with success in the Sonoma fair. Jon will have six breeding stock Herefords, Sandra four breeding stock Herefords and two grade dairy cattle. Each will enter three head of fat beef to go under the hammer at the Junior Livestock auction.

Other Novato entries include Martin Baccaglio, with a fat hog, two fat lambs and three Holstein dairy cattle; Mary Linda Baccaglio, with a fat hog, two fat lambs and one Holstein; Marsha Baccaglio, with two fat beef; Jerry Hogan with a fat beef; Ronald Lear, with a fat beef and two fat lambs; Barry Lear with two fat lambs; Linda Wright, three hogs and two lambs; Dick Wright, one beef and one lamb; Jim Wright, one beef; Catherine Young, two hogs; Jane Young, two hogs and a grade dairy cow and Lester Thompson, also with a grade dairy cow.

Joan Carillo will show a herd of six Guernseys; Germon Medeiros will show six Holsteins; Frank Smaw, a fat beef and a breeding stock Angus; Richard Smaw, a fat beef; Nancy Bloom, three Southdown breeding sheep and three fat lambs; David Ehreth, two lambs; Bill Glass, two lambs; George Johnson, two lambs; Kathy Marzell, two lambs; Kathleen Keena, one lamb and a Guernsey dairy cow; Stephen Schwindt, two lambs; Catherine and Millard Walline, each two lambs; Diane Thorsson, two lambs; Glenn Thorsson, one lamb, and Dennis Talhot, a lamb.

From San Rafael, George Nunes will enter 10 head of Holstein dairy cattle, and Bill Porter and Stephen Williams will each show two fat lambs.

Allen and Linden Sievers of Lagunitas each will show two fat lambs and one Jersey dairy cow. Lauren Sievers will show two Jersey dairy cattle. Two Woodacre 4-Hers will show, Lillian Sommer with two lambs and Ruth Pederson with one. Sharon Ward of Point Reyes Station will enter three lambs. Anna Anker of San Geronimo will show one lamb, and from Nicasio, Georgia Gallagher will show a Guernsey in dairy cattle and Joyce Gallagher and Terry Tomasini will have a Hereford each in breeding beef cattle.

In open, senior livestock, Clifford Orr, former Novato 4-H Club member who built up the noted Indian Valley herd, will show his herd of 13 Guernseys which recently swept all honors in sight at the Napa County Fair at Calistoga.

Novato will be additionally represented at the fair on Farmer's Day Sunday, July 24, traditionally the most heavily attended day of the exposition, when a major attraction will be a Region 1 horse show event displaying Novato's famed Thunderbirds, a crack junior drill team of a dozen bareback boy and girl riders from 8 to 18, trained and led by Arlene Johnson.

The junior livestock auction is scheduled July 29, which will also be Kids' Day at the fair with reduced prices on the rides, freckled-faced and pie eating contests and other attractions aimed to please the youngsters.

DIVIDED LIFE—Pretty Peggy Perry, who lives a divided life right on the Marin-Sonoma county line, will show this prize Guernsey at the Sonoma County Fair at Santa Rosa July 21-30.

Rose Bowl Dance Scheduled Tonight

Terra Linda Plans Final Budget Meet

Directors of the Terra Linda Community Services District will ponder a 1960-61 budget totalling $39,483 at what they hope will be their final budget session at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Bernard Hoffman School.

The proposed budget calls for an estimated tax rate of 96 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Last year's tax rate was 97 cents to finance a $39,000 budget. The district's assessed valuation has risen, although the exact amount is unknown.

Salaries totalling $6,850 include $3,000 for the fire chief, $300 for volunteer firemen, $150 for vacation substitutes, $1,500 for a recreation director and $1,000 for recreation supervisors, and $900 for the district's secretary-general manager.

Street lighting maintenance is allocated $8,328 and park maintenance, $6,000.

Capital expenditures include $342 for a duplicating machine, $52 for a typewriter, $1,000 for recreation architectural drawings, and $5,716 for fire equipment.

The budget includes a $4,100 reserve fund.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, July 16, the 198th day of the year, with 168 more in 1960.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1723, English painter Sir Joshua Reynolds was born.

In 1790, Congress established the District of Columbia on the Potomac River and voted to make it the permanent seat of the U. S. government.

In 1821, Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Church of Christ, Scientist, was born at Bow, N. H.

In 1862, David Glasgow Farragut became the first admiral in the U. S. Navy.

In 1945, the first experimental test of an atomic bomb occurred at Alamagordo, N. M.

A thought for today: Russian author Fyodor Dostoyevsky said in the Brothers Karamazov: "The true security is to be found in social solidarity rather than in isolated individual effort."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden) Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Giants Really In A Dense Fog, Fall Into Fifth Place

The Giants were in a fog for 24 minutes last night but it wasn't long enough.

After the mists had cleared, the Los Angeles Dodgers continued to work the San Francisco hurling over for a total of 12 hits and a 5-3 victory.

It marked the sixth loss in seven games for San Francisco and dropped the morning-line favorites into fifth place.

The Giants had a chance to get the game called off when the fog got so thick in the second inning that Umpire Frank Dascolli told the ball players to head for the igloo. But after a 24-minute delay, the evening cleared up and Los Angeles, which held a 3-0 lead at the time, went on to win.

Manager Tom Sheehan, who admits the whole situation has got him whipped, will hustle Jack Sanford (8-6) out to the hill this afternoon to face Stan Williams (8-2) of the Dodgers in the second of the three-game set in San Francisco.

"I sure hope Jack will do somethin'," Sheehan grunted last night. "Sam (Jones) has been terrible."

The toothpick-eating right-hander was clubbed for six hits in the first two innings he pitched last night and three runs. Then Billy O'Dell took over for him to start the third, but it too late to get Sam off the hook for his ninth loss.

HOWARD HOMERS

Duke Snider drove in two runs in the first frame with one of his three singles and big boy Frank Howard smashed a home run with the bases empty in the sixth to help Don Drysdale notch his seventh win. It also was the side-arming right-hander's first victory against San Francisco this year in four shots.

Orlando Cepeda drove in two San Francisco runs with a double and a single and Ed Bessoud, returning to the lineup after a 14-game absence because of a bad ankle, doubled across the other.

Drysdale began to fade in the eighth with two out and a run across. Then Manager Walt Alston called in Ed Roebuck, his relief ace, who made Willie Kirkland tap back to first base for the rally-stopper.

FOGGY TRIPLE

Willie McCovey got a triple in the second frame thanks to the fog. The slumping first baseman blooped a Drysdale pitch on a low trajectory back of second base where Snider lost it in the fog and left fielder Wally Moon scampered around like Ben Blue trying to retrieve it. In the meantime, Willie Mac was heading for third base.

Dascoli halted the game at that point because of the weird visibility and for a while the crowd of 35,622 seemed destined to line up for fog checks. But then the night cleared, McCovey was out trying to score on Cepeda's infield out, and things returned to normal.

BATTING AROUND: Sheehan kept the dressing room doors locked for about 40 minutes after the final out . . . "I rip into them before and after the games but what good does it do?" he moaned . . . Drysdale figures that a good sinker ball pitcher could win 40 games in Candlestick Park, with its tricky down drafts . . . Snider's three singles were of the bloop variety, but he isn't beefing . . . "You've gotta get those, too, for a good average and I haven't hit many this year," he said . . . Umps unpopular? Tony Venzon recalls that a fellow arbiter in the Geeorgia State League, Mike Ganakas, once left a ball park with the aid of tear gas and a patrol wagon which spirited him away from irate fans.

U.S. Leads Canada In Davis Cup Play

QUEBEC (AP)—The United States looks for a pair of 19-year-olds from St. Louis to wrap up a first round American zone Davis Cup tennis victory over Canada today.

Earl Buchholz and Chuck McKinley were Capt. David Freed's selections to represent the U. S. in the doubles after 32-year-old Bernard Bartzen of Dallas and 24-year-old Barry McKay of Dayton, Ohio, won yesterday's two singles matches.

Ex-Giant Broglio Turns In One-Hit, 14-Strikeout Win

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Ernie Broglio? He's my guy," said Manager Solly Hemus of the sparked-up St. Louis Cardinals. "He's done the job, as a starting pitcher or in relief."

That was during the All-Star break, after the Cards had won nine of 13 and moved into a fourth-place tie in the National League race. Broglio, who was traded to the Cards by San Francisco, had won three of 'em, two in relief against Milwaukee and the other in a complete game against Los Angeles.

Now the six-foot-two right-hander, a fast-balling 220-pounder, has added the best game of his two-year career in the majors, allowing just one hit and striking out 14 in a 6-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs last night.

That left the Cards all alone in fourth place, seven games behind the first place Pittsburgh Pirates who lost 4-1 to Cincinnati. Second place Milwaukee moved within three games of the Bucs by beating Philadelphia 7-5. Third place Los Angeles, a half game ahead of St. Louis, defeated San Francisco 5-3 and dropped the Giants to fifth.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

In the American League, Rocky Colavito's fourth home run in three games triggered Detroit to an 8-4 victory over the first place New York Yankees. Second place Cleveland moved within 1½ games of the top by beating Washington 4-0 on Jim Perry's four-hitter. Baltimore gained a virtual tie for third with Chicago, beating the White Sox 5-2 as Brooks Robinson became the first to hit for the cycle—home run, triple, double and single—in the A. L. since 1957. Boston beat Kansas City 2-1.

Broglio (10-4), giving up only a second-inning single by Ed Bouchee and walking two, rolled up the top nine-inning strikeout total of the year in the N. L. for his fifth straight victory and first shutout of the season.

The Cards, with Stan Musial driving in two runs and Carl Sawatski hitting a homer, made it two in a row over Don Cardwell (4-8).

The Reds, after losing eight in a row to the Pirates, beat Friend (10-6) with two first-inning runs. They got them when Vada Pinson rapped an RBI single, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and then scored the clincher on Wally Post's sacrifice fly. Jim O'Toole (7-8) won it.

Joe Adcock hit a grand-slam home run in the fourth inning that got the Braves moving against Chris Short (4-6). Warren Spahn (9-6) gave up two home runs by Pancho Herrera and needed Ron Piche's help for the final out.

Seals Win Title In Terra Linda

Manager Ned DiGrazia's Seals won the Terra Linda Senior Boys' Baseball League championship recently by sweeping two games from the Angels in the playoffs. The Seals had to come from behind in both games to win 10-6 and 8-7, the latter in extra innings.

Callison Rallies To Gain Finals In National Publinx

HONOLULU (AP)—Verne Callison, a top-notch California amateur for more years than he cares to recall, is a slight favorite over Ty Caplin, youthful East Lansing, Mich., golfer in today's finals of the National Public Links Golf Championship.

Callison, who first played in the tournament in 1938, reached the finals yesterday by edging Mike Andonian, Pontiac, Mich., high school instructor, 1 up.

Caplin, a 23-year-old senior at Michigan State University, won his semi-final match in decisive fashion by downing Bob McMasters, 25, a salesman from Royal Oak, Mich., 5 and 4.

Callison, after cleaning up practically every California amateur tournament in the last year, was one down after 30 holes but rallied to win.

Cal Reports Very Poor Duck Season

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Last year was a good one for California's dove hunters, but a mighty poor one for the duck hunters.

That was the report from the State Fish and Game Department Friday as it counted up game bag figures in its annual hunter survey.

Hunters who sent in questionnaires reported shooting 3,57,900 doves—sending the species into No. 1 position in place of ducks.

Duck hunters reported 1,912,300 kills, a drop of 58.5 per cent from 1958, when the bag was 4,610,300.

Quail held third place again, despite a 23.5 per cent drop, from 1,939,800 to 1,483,400.

All told, declines were noted in pheasants, quail, grouse, band-tailed pigeons, jackrabbits, cottontail or brush rabbits, tree squirrels, geese, ducks, jacksnipes and coots.

Increases were reported in doves, chukar partridges, sage grouse, buck deer, bears and European wild pigs.

The reported deer kill was 73,843.

BOWLING ROUNDUP

Drago's 861 Leads Trio Loop Scorers

Carlo Drago found the range to the tune of 861 pins over four games this week to move to the head of the class in the Country Club Bowl's 540 Trio League.

Carlo collected lines of 227, high for the evening, 218, and 196 and 220 to achieve his top effort of the season.

His Kennedy Painting team also copped high honors with 2258 total pins on games of 576, 598, 521 and 563. The Painters are now tied for second place with Filippo's Construction, each with 22 wins and 14 losses. Bermuda Palms is on top with a 28-8 record.

Some other high games: Mike Weddell 224, Keith Morris 218, Mike Damico 213, Paul Gottlieb 211 and Zeno Gelatti 210.

Al Charney and Bill Rhoads each rolled an all-spare game and each finished with 182. They'll each receive an all-spare trophy from Diablo Bowling Supplies of San Rafael.

BOB BLISS, a backup artist, led the field in Wednesday night's Mixed Fours League with a 562 series, featuring a 203 line. Dave Boyd was second with a 519. Ray DeLeon's 210 was top solo.

Bert Tynes led the women with 401 while Gloria Hill hit 392.

TONY McMULLEN hit 206-152-172—530 and Nettie Gavalli scored 154-148-197—499 to lead the Guys and Dolls League at Greenbrae Lanes.

BILL HARVEY was a model of consistency with games of 188, 188 and 185 for a 561 total in the Commercial League at Greenbrae. Jim Green also turned in a steady effort with a pair of 180s and a 182 for 542. High game of the night went to Joe Ancic with 247.

AUSTIN CRANE'S 155-226-161—542 and Bessie Baglietto's 124-166-155—445 led the Greenbrae's Mixed Fours Scratch circuit.

RON COX blasted a 247 game in a 582 series in the Merchants league while Jay Thomas, with a 222 leading the way, came in with a 568.

Vancouver Runner Does 100 Meters In 10 Seconds

SASKATOON (AP)—Harry Jerome of Vancouver ran 100 meters in 10 seconds flat yesterday in the Canadian Olympic track and field trials.

It makes him one of only two men in the world who have recorded the time.

In Zurich last month a German sprinter, Armin Henry, also sprinted the distance in 10 seconds but his record has not yet been officially recognized.

Jerome beat the established record of 10.1 first set by Willie Williams of the United States in Germany in 1956. Williams now competes for San Jose State.

Jerome's record-shattering time was a complete surprise. His times in the qualifying heats were 10.7 and 10.8.

Chargers Boast Strong Backfield

ORANGE (AP)—Coach Sid Gillman of the Los Angeles Chargers says he thinks his backfield secondary will be as good as any he has had in pro football.

Gillman's reference evidently was to the Los Angeles Rams, whose deficiencies in the defensive backfield were somewhat marked last year. But the Chargers are relying on rookies. Only Jim Sears, formerly of the Chicago Cardinals, and Jesse Thomas, ex-Baltimore Colt, are experienced.

TIBURON VS. S. A.

Semi-Pro Rivals Battle Tomorrow

Those feudin', fussin' and fightin' semi-professional baseball rivals — Tiburon Pelicans and San Anselmo Ongaro Plumbers — square off again tomorrow and, if past contests mean anything, fans will be in for a real donnybrook.

Their first clash of the 1960 campaign will be played at Tiburon's Judge Field starting at 2:30 p.m.

Tiburon will be out to avenge last year's series in which the Pelicans lost two of their three-games. Tiburon copped a 2-1 thriller at Tiburon, but San Anselmo stormed back with a 2-0 win at San Anselmo and really tore loose for an 11-1 triumph at neutral Albert Field in San Rafael. In the past two years San Anselmo has won four of the six meetings.

Each team has been beaten only once this season. San Anselmo has five victories while Tiburon warmed up for tomorrow's game by pounding out an 11-5 victory last night over Healdsburg for its seventh decision of the season.

Gene Chaon cracked a two-run homer and Eddie Vigno Jr. hit a solo four-master to spark the victory.

Buzz Wensloff, making his 1960 debut for Tiburon, and Fred DeMartini divided the pitching chores. Wensloff was credited with the win.

RAIDERS MAY SET RECORD FOR INJURIES

SANTA CRUZ (AP)—Coach Eddie Erdelatz is wondering whether his Oakland Raiders are going to set a record for injuries.

Brad Meyers, a halfback who played with the Los Angeles Rams and Philadelphia Eagles, suffered a pulled thigh muscle yesterday.

Several others trying out for the new American Football League club have suffered minor injuries. They are progressing satisfactorily, Erdelatz said. Former Navy end Ron Beagle is the most seriously hurt with a recurrence of an old knee injury. He may be out for the season.

Two players left camp voluntarily yesterday. They were Clark Holden, a fullback from Los Angeles Valley J. C. and his brother David, a 270-pound tackle from L. A. State.

Wall Leads Way In Western Open

DETROIT (AP) — Touring golf professionals are accustomed to running after Art Wall Jr., and the chase was on again today as the 57th Western Open moved into its third round.

A record-breaking 66 yesterday gave Wall a two-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the $25,000 event.

Trailing Wall by two strokes were Pete Cooper, Stan Leonard, Jim Ferree and Tommy Jacobs. None has won a major event in two years but all moved into contention in this one with sub-70 performances in the second round.

Gals Maul Records In AAU Swimming; Ruuska Is Upset

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — American girls mauled records in the first five events of the AAU National Swimming championships.

In the first two days of the meet, they surpassed two world records, five U. S. records, and five AAU championship standards.

Patsy Willard, a pretty 19-year-old brunette from Mesa, Ariz., yesterday ignored 59 stiches in her scalp from a diving mishap just three weeks ago and took the three-meter springboard championship away from U. S. and Canadian champion Irene MacDonald.

Little Deanne De Varona of Berkeley, Calif., a slight 5 feet 2 and barely turned 13, won the 400-meter individual medley at world record time from Sylvia Ruuska, her fellow townswoman who had been tagged America's greatest all-around swimmer.

Becky Collins of Indianapolis, defending butterfly champion, finished third behind De Varona and Ruuska in the medley in spite of a heavily taped ankle, sprained in a fall last week.

Miss De Varona, even with Miss Ruuska after the butterfly, backstroke and breaststroke sections of the medley, matched Sylvia stroke for stroke in the freestyle and won by a 10th of a second, 5:36.5 to 5:36.6.

Miss Ruuska set the old world record of 5:40.2 last year.

Lynn Burke of the Santa Clara Swim Club whittled the world record in the 200-meter backstroke to 2:33.5, against the accepted mark of 2:37.1 by Satako Tanaka of Japan. She won by two lengths over Chris von Saltza, the American freestyle queen, who held the American record of 2:37.4.

Von Saltza contributed a new American record of 1:01.6 in the 100-meter freestyle.

Ann Warner, teammate of von Saltza and Burke on the Santa Clara Swim Club, repeated as 200-meter breaststroke champion with a 2:53.3 performance that broke her listed American record of 2:56.4. She has a faster 2:51.4 claim pending.

Spray Bars Invasion Of Mosquitoes

About 2,000 acres of Sonoma County marshland was sprayed by airplane this week to prevent mosquitoes from migrating into Marin County, the Marin Mosquito Abatement District manager reported at last night's trustee meeting.

The trustees authorized Manager G. Paul Jones to buy seven mobile two-way radios for district vehicles. The radios will be operated through the county communications center. Jones said the radios will cut down on vehicle mileage and provide better service to the public.

The trustees asked surveyor Eugene Lockton of San Rafael to draw up plans to pave and put in sidewalks, curbs and gutters at the district yard on Third Street east of Montecito Shopping Center.

Transit System To End Service

FRESNO (AP)—The city's transit system announced today it started action to abandon service in Fresno.

Fresno City Lines wrote the City Council telling of plans to end service. The notice will take effect in one year under terms of a contract.

The city council has ordered a study to determine the feasibility of a city-owned bus line.

BUT WE DON'T CELEBRATE

15 Years Ago Today First Atomic Bomb Exploded

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fifteen years ago today the first atomic bomb exploded at Alamogordo, N. M.

With that awesome experiment of July 16, 1945, the world slipped unnoticed into a new era, at once more dangerous and more promising than any which preceded it.

But the anniversary is not one that people celebrate. And in the tragic light of Hiroshima, 60 per cent of which was obliterated by atomic power exactly three weeks later, it is often forgotten.

The small community of scientists and military men at Alamogordo worked in a setting that approximated doomsday with lightning crackling in gloomy skies and torrential rains sweeping the desert.

Brig. Gen. Thomas F. Farrell, deputy chief of the War Department's Manhattan Project, recalled that tension was almost unbelievable for those who participated in man's first adventure in tapping the violent core of the atom.

"We were reaching into the unknown and did not know what would come of it," he explained.

On the night of July 12 the group of scientists charged with assembling the bomb was near panic. The parts had just arrived from three separate laboratories across the United States. Now, as the experts tried to piece them together, they found two small sections that did not seem to fit. But the job was finally accomplished.

The attempt to unleash the tremendous energies binding the nucleus of an atom represented the first practical application of what Dr. Albert Einstein had proved on paper with his theory of relativity. On this theory, the U. S. government gambled two billion dollars in less than four years, mobilizing 125,000 workers and technicians.

Up to the last minute, the scientists at Alamogordo spoke about the possibility of a grand fizzle.

At zero hour in pre-dawn darkness, the bomb burst and flowered into a fantastic fireball. A mountain range hidden five miles off suddenly was illuminated in every detail. In an instant, the range was blotted by a rising mushroom cloud.

Up to 250 miles away falling plaster and rattling windows touched off rumors of a Japanese attack. The phenomena remained unexplained until Aug. 6, when President Truman announced to the world America's possession — and use—of atomic power.

Madagascar Photos On Exhibit In S.F.

"Madagascar Expedition," the photographic record of a recent collecting trip by Dr. Edward S. Ross of Mill Valley to the island of Madagascar, is now on exhibit at the California Academy of Sciences in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco.

Dr. Ross is a member of the academy's department of entomology. Specimens and artifacts collected on the trip also will be on display. The exhibit may be seen through August.

Politicians Have Field Day In Predicting Future Economy

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The politicians can find almost anything they're looking for in today's statistics on the economy.

The figures indicate it's going in both directions — to the dogs or to a high and stable prosperity. The politician can pick the figures that suit his purpose and ignore the ones that don't.

This is true today more than usual. Always there are some parts of the economy on the upward. This used to be called rolling recession or rolling prosperity, depending on which trend could muster the most followers.

But today the split is wider than usual and the division between the up-goers and the down-goers more equal.

Employment is rising. The number of jobless has increased.

Farmers have planted fewer acres. The total of farm output is expected to rise.

Auto output is well ahead of last year and so are car retail sales. Dealer stocks of unsold new cars are higher than normal and some auto production lines are cut back.

Retail sales are ahead of a year ago. Retail investments in many lines of unsold goods have been rising.

Manufacturers sales of hard goods have exceeded new orders each month this year. But new orders are holding fairly steady now with recent drops about offset by recent rises.

Consumers continue to spend a bit more than last year because the total of their incomes is a bit higher. But merchants are turning to price cutting to move some consumer durables.

All this obviously is a politician's paradise. When the economy seems to be stuck on dead center with some indicators pointing up and down, you can view with alarm or preach confidence at will.

The businessman has a more difficult task, however. He's trying to decide just which way business is heading. Few things worry him more than being stuck on dead center.

Senior Scout Hospital Aides Receive Awards

Senior Girl Scout Hospital Aides have completed another year of service to San Rafael General Hospital.

Awards were presented at individual troop ceremonies, according to Mrs. Robert L. Langbehn, coordinator of the program.

Mrs. Langbehn, a registered nurse, also trains the girls for their work as hospital volunteers.

Twelve Senior Girl Scouts received awards. Heading the list was Mary Langbehn who worked as a hospital volunteer for a total of 75 hours. For this achievement she received a white stripe for her uniform cap, in addition to a service bar for her original 50 hours.

Also receiving service bars were Pat Baird (68 hours), Mary Lucas (64), Tammy Ballantyne (60), Linda Bayley (60), Frances Haines (57), Maribeth Chouinard (56), Sue Henika (56), Robbie Houser (56), Sharon Siem (50), and Leslie Martus (50).

Diane Di Grazia, working for her second year, has now worked 100 hours and wears a double white stripe on her cap.

Ronald Dressler Claims Bride At Rites In The Dalles, Ore.

Ronald Dressler of Mill Valley claimed Ann Smith as his bride in an 8 o'clock evening ceremony performed on July 8 at the Methodist church in The Dalles, Ore.

Some 300 guests attended the double ring rites performed by the Rev. Myron M. Hall in the church, which was decorated with two shades of pink carnations and stock with ivy.

Present for the wedding were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Dressler, and his sister, Mrs. Ehrling Carlsen with her son Stephen —all of Mill Valley.

When the bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Earl Meeker and the late Dr. E. Noel Smith of The Dalles, was given in marriage by her stepfather, she was wearing a floor-length gown of white silk organza with a train. It was fashioned with fitted bodice of handmade Swiss lace having a scoop neckline and short sleeves.

Her elbow-length veil was held by a pearl trimmed cap of the same last as that in her dress, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and pink baby roses with ivy.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Duane Peterson of Monterey, Calif., and bridesmaids were Helen Diesner of Sunnyvale, Calif.; Sandra Dwyre of Salem, Ore.; Karen Wilson of Kent, Ore.; and Loretta Gray of The Dalles.

All wore frocks of silk organza, with that of the matron of honor in shocking pink and the bridesmaids' in paler pink. They were designed with very full skirts, short sleeves and square necklines. Hand draped picture hats of the same material as their dresses completed their costumes, and they carried picture baskets filled with the same flowers used in the decorations for the church.

Best man was the bride's uncle, Henry Smith and escorting guests to their seats were Robert Smith, Gary Meeker and Paul Schanno — all of The Dalles — and John Gienger of Tillamook, Ore.

Mrs. Meeker attended her daughter's wedding in a pink lace dress and matching hat, and the bridegroom's mother was attired in a beige silk dress and cocoa brown hat. Each wore a corsage of gardenias and pink roses.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's stepsisters, Ruth and Mary Ann, passed wedding cake and pink bags of rice to the guests.

When the couple left for a honeymoon at an undisclosed destination, the new Mrs. Dressler was wearing a navy blue silk shantung sheath with jacket, a white cloche and gloves and a corsage of gardenias and pink roses.

The newlyweds will live in Oakland, where the bridegroom is employed by the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

He is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. Before he was employed in his present position, he served for six months with the U.S. Marine Corps.

His bride completed her sophomore year at Oregon State College, where she was a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, and she plans to continue her studies in the fall at the University of California.

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Luncheon Honors Mrs. Neville Adams

"We're glad you're not going" was the theme of an originally planned "bon voyage" party given recently for Mrs. Nelville G. Adams of Mill Valley in the San Francisco home of Mrs. Max Bergmann, who formerly lived in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Adams' plans to leave for Indonesia this month have changed, and she will be remaining in Mill Valley with her daughter, Michelle.

Marin guests attending the luncheon were Mesdames Gerland Misner, Archer Forsyth, Howard Houchard, Charles Bassett, Arthur Cestak, Elmer Basey, Stanley Wilson, Robert S. Miller and Thomas Ford.

Mrs. Forsyth will honor Mrs. Adams at a tea she will give in her Mill Valley home Sunday following the same change of theme.

BPW Meet In Novato Set Tuesday

An international relations dinner meeting will be held by the Novato Business and Professional Women's Club on Tuesday, July 19 at 7 p.m. at Novato Joe's Restaurant.

Mrs. Claire Porobish, chairman of the meeting, has announced that Kay Goff, former student at San Rafael High School who spent her senior year with an Italian family near Milan, Italy, will be the principal speaker. Miss Goff is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goff of Terra Linda.

"New Horizons in a new City" has been chosen as the theme for the new Novato business women's group, according to Mrs. Barbara Sparrow, president. This is in accord with the national and state programs of the BPWC for promoting progressive leadership and effective living among women.

Reservations for the dinner should be made by calling Mrs. Porobish. Guests are welcome.

Residential Coordinator Named To Jr. Museum's Fund Campaign

Named this week as residential coordinator for the junior Museum of Marin's Expansion Fund Campaign was Mrs. George A. Metcalf of Kentfield. The announcement of her appointment was made by A. L. McCormick, general chairman.

The purpose of the campaign is to provide improved facilities which will permit an expanded program at the Museum. High on the priority list are convertible laboratory and classrooms; a mobile trailer similar to the County Library's Bookmobile for taking the Museum to the outlying areas and additional teaching tools in the form of motion picture films on specific aspects of Marin's animal, plant and mineral resources.

The campaign will be divided into two main categories: residential solicitation, and business and professional.

Mrs. Metcalfe, who resides at 35 Rock Road, Kentfield, is active in community activities. Her past exploits with the Music Chest are well-known. In 1955 and 1956 she was chairman for Kentfield and Kent Woodlands respectively. For three years from 1957 through 1959, she was county drive chairman. She also has been an active worker with Sunny Hills since 1950 and was responsible for the Humane Societ's fund raising events in 1955 and 1956.

Her interest in and work with the Junior Museum dates back to its inception. She was instrumental in the public relations effort which culminated in the founding of the museum. Her efforts in organizing the 1957 and 1958 house tours, climaxed in fashion shows at the Roger Kent estate.

Mrs. Metcalfe explained that although some people are on vacation at any one time during the summer, it is often preferable to a fall campaign when everyone is over-involved in a myriad of outside activities. Mrs. Metcalfe stressed the importance of a flexible canvasser training program to permit all those families interested in the museum to take an active part in the campaign.

Her organization will consist of 15 area chairmen, each of whom will be assigned to a particular geographical sub-division of the county. The area chairmen will enlist a maximum of four team captains who will in turn each enlist five workers.

These canvassers will be trained by the campaign organization and then launch solicitation in their own neighborhoods.

Altogether, Mrs. Metcalfe will direct the activities of over 250 workers, by far the largest segment of the entire campaign.

Method For The Cooking Of Asparagus

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Are you under the impression that the tips are sweetest part of asparagus?

If so, just try cutting the stalks in short lengths and panning them briefly in butter. Chances are you'll change your mind.

For this method of cooking, the fibrous outer covering of asparagus stalks, up to the tips, must be pared off with a swivel-blade vegetable peeler. For the cooking utensil, choose a modern-type deep skillet with a tightly-fitting cover.

If the stalks are quite thin, they may be cut in 1-inch lengths with slanted ends.

If on the medium-thick side, place your knife at a wide angle and slice so that the pieces are a couple of inches long, thin and oval-shaped. When you reach the tip, angle the knife the same way and leave whole or cut in half. The tips will be thicker than the rest of the pieces but they will cook in the same length of time and won't break up.

To pan 1 pound of asparagus (plenty for two) use an 8-inch skillet, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons water and ¼ teaspoon salt. Simmer, covered, just until tender crisp — 5 minutes or less; stir a few times and watch absorbedly so as not to scorch.

To pan two pounds of asparagus (plenty for four) use a 10-inch skillet with 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ cup boiling water, ½ teaspoon salt, and the above method of cooking. If there is a little water left in the skillet after cooking, drain it off, then stir in another tablespoon of butter.

When asparagus are panned in this way they are perfect to serve right along with any meat — from hamburgers to ham. Whole stalks of asparagus make an admirable appetizer or after-the-main-dish salad. As their accompanying sauce, browned butter is superb. Melt the butter slowly until it turns hazelnut color; then skim off the foam and pour over the cooked stalks. A tablespoon of butter for each generous serving of asparagus is ample.

Asparagus have an affinity for eggs. Serve them with Eggs Benedict — that luscious combination of toasted English muffins, ham, poached eggs and Hollandaise sauce.

Creamed eggs on crisp toast on the menu for lunch? Asparagus make the perfect go-along.

Asparagus give a fillip to fish. They are particularly delicious with cold poached fresh salmon

Mill Valley Parks, Recreation Unit To Meet Thursday

A special meeting of the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at the city hall to discuss Project 17.

The meeting was called on recommendation of the Marin County Planning Commission. David Van Pelt, county planner, said the commission will have a public hearing Aug. 16 to consider amending Mill Valley's master plan relating to land use in the marshlands. The commission suggested that the parks and recreation commission discuss the 17-acre recreation area with Recco, the Library Board and other interested groups.

The regular monthly meeting of the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D.
Guidance Counsellor

Parent Advised Not To Permit His Son To Quit His First Job

F.R. "My son is 16. He is on his first job and doesn't like it. The pay is good. The work is not hard, but it is monotonous. He frets over taking orders, getting to work on time and continuing to work when he is tired. His friends have jobs, too, but he says their work is easier. He wants to quit. Should I let him?"

Reply. No. Let him stop a week or two before school begins. He'll need a little time to play. But try to keep him on the job now. He needs to learn how to plug away at monotonous tasks and to take orders. Be sure he controls the spending of at least part of the money he earns. He should see the good side of work as well as the unpleasant.

M.S. "My religious leader says that church-going teen-agers are the only young people in America who live up to our traditional moral standards. Is there any real evidence to back him up?"

Reply. Yes. The most striking evidence comes from Alfred Kinsey, the sex research man. In both of his books Kinsey pointed out that church-going young people have high standards, while many others don't. Additional research since Kinsey's death has found the same thing. This is one reason I advise parents to raise their children in a church with a good youth program.

T.C. "My husband is a school teacher. Our income is smaller than our neighbors'. We can't keep up with them. We're wondering if I should get a job. Our children are 2, 4 and 6. Would they be hurt if I found work?"

Reply. Probably they would be hurt. I am a guidance counselor. I spend my days trying to help parents whose children are in difficulty. A very high percentage of the cases I see involve homes in which the mother works. Your children need you. Don't leave them.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

3-R Schools May Seek National Plan

The possibility that the 3R Schools Inc., of San Rafael may become a national chain of private schools, marketing a classical, academic curriculum, is to be explored this summer by James W. Kirchanski founder-director of the schools.

Kirchanski will leave July 26 for a two months tour of eastern and midwestern states at the invitation of numerous groups interested in his rigorous brand of education. He will meet with groups of parents, teachers, businessmen, industrialists, employers, and others who have learned of the Three-R school through nationwide mention in the press, and on radio and TV.

He has a busy schedule of appointments with groups in Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Virginia, Tennessee, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Texas.

Belvedere Council Will Meet Again On Bond Election

The Belvedere City Council will hold a special meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in the city office to re-introduce the ordinance calling for a Sept. 13 special election on the $450,000 bond issue to construct a sewage treatment plant, according to City Manager Britton Rey.

The council had previously set the date, but newly-enacted state legislation requires that the resolution be acted upon again, Rey said. The meeting will be held in the city office because the planning commission is meeting in the community hall.

Belvedere's share of the Tiburon Sanitary District's treatment plants expansion has been estimated at $450,000, Rey said. The actual figure of the bond issue has not been specifically set yet, he said.

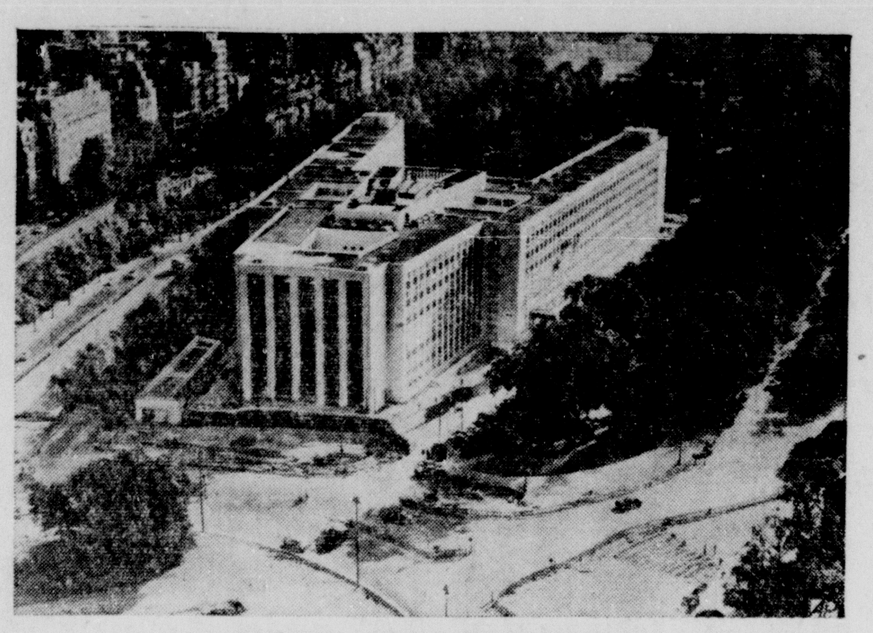

Bolinas Firemen Name New Chief

Peter Marten was elected fire chief of the Bolinas Volunteer Fire Department Thursday at a meeting of the Bolinas Fire Protection District. Marten replaces James Dougan who resigned for business reasons.

Donald Staude and Donald Pepper were elected assistants to the chief.

It was announced at the meeting that the 15th annual Harvest Ball will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., Aug. 27 in the Bolinas Community Center. Maury Wolohan's orchestra will play, and the ball will benefit the department.

Marten reported a highly successful cleanup day last Sunday. Firemen hauled away grass cuttings, etc. A luncheon was provided afterwards by the wives of the community.

Perhaps Pat Brown Should Avoid Going To Conventions

Have Governor Brown's political fortunes dipped to a new low?

Last year, Brown appeared to take himself seriously as a contender for Democratic nomination for president or vice president. Others, some in high places, took this possibility seriously, too.

After that bubble burst, it became apparent that the governor's strategy would be to take his big 81-vote California delegation to the convention, pledged to Pat Brown, but available to the right candidate at the strategic time.

But the Kennedy bandwagon got into high gear earlier than anticipated; before the convention convened, as a matter of fact.

As the delegates gathered in Los Angeles the week before the convention, Brown was persuaded to seek a seat on the Kennedy bandwagon.

But his characteristic inclination to try to please opposing factions simultaneously, seemed to prove his stumbling block.

He came out for Kennedy. The exact words of his announcement indicated the delegates were released from their obligation to vote for Brown at least on the first ballot.

He subsequently had to issue "clarifying" statements, to the effect that the delegation was NOT released. A confused furor resulted, even among the delegates. With his influence running out, the governor told the delegates they were released to vote for whomever they chose; he hoped it would be Kennedy.

Kennedy forces were miffed. It was said they thought they had Brown's assurance of all-out backing. But Brown's performance added up to less than all out delivery of California's 81 votes. He was in the dog house, at least with some.

As it turned out, Pat Brown never got nominated at all. He got only one vote for the nomination. He didn't even swing a majority of his delegation to Kennedy.

As "Cap" Weinberger, former assemblyman and new a political columnist, has observed: "Some of Pat Brown's closest friends think he should stay away from national conventions of his party."

Our guess is that he will have an exceedingly tough time getting nominated to succeed himself as governor two years from now.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Tamalpais Union High School District for forthrightly publicizing its full tax rate, including levies for retiring bonds, eschewing the all-too-frequent practice of mentioning only the basic rate while ignoring the bond service taxes.

A BRICKBAT to Assemblyman McCollister for promoting two "prestige" license plates when the legislators' rules say only one to a customer.

A BOUQUET to Col. George Ceuleers who turned over command of Hamilton Air Force Base to his successor, Col. Harvey E. Anderson, today. Ceuleers quickly won the respect of civilian Marin County when he took command three years ago. Our good wishes go with him in his next assignment.

A BOUQUET to the Marin Visitors Bureau for the new edition of the Marvelous Marin Food And Lodging Guide just published in a new edition. We are sure it will aid the development of the business in Marin.

A BRICKBAT to the TV newscasters covering the Democratic convention who seemed to put more effort into promoting themselves and their networks than into the job of informing viewers.

A BOUQUET to San Anselmo retail merchants for conducting another edition of "San Anselmo Bargain Days," a real boon to the pinched pocketbooks of harried housewives.

A BOUQUET to the State Division of Highways for its all-out effort to remind motorists of the new north bound turnoff at Greenbrae interchange. Thousands of mimeographed reminder sketches were handed, many directly to drivers at stop lights, at the time of the turnoff change.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

PASSING RESOLUTIONS NOT ENOUGH

Members of a worthwhile organization were shocked recently when their president read them a list of 46 resolutions they had passed at meetings during the year. No actions had been taken on any of them.

It was a polite but effective reminder that little if anything is settled by merely "passing resolutions," however excellent they may be.

For constructive action, good ideas must, of course, be rooted in sound principles. But unless they are backed up by more than talk, they will never be more than high-sounding principles "on the shelf," waiting to be translated into performance.

For every minute you spend talking about how the world should be improved, devote at least another 20 minutes to practical ways and means of really doing what you advocate.

You can make a valuable contribution by putting your good ideas into daily practice. That is the recommendation of the Lord Himself, Who said:

"Not everyone who says to Me, 'Lord, Lord' shall enter the kindom of heaven; but he who does the will of My Father in heaven." (Matthew 7:21)

Help me, O Holy Spirit, to be a "doer" of good rather than only a "talker."

YESTERDAY, TODAY, TOMORROW

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Kennedy Is Cool Individual, Not Easy To Get To Know Intimately

LOS ANGELES — What manner of man is John F. Kennedy? And what manner of politician? What kind of a President would he make?

Many of Mr. Kennedy's qualities stand out like a neon light in a church corridor. Others are more complex, less visible. They will probably not come into focus until the campaign begins to turn its searchlight on both the Presidential nominees.

Washington correspondents know part of Sen. Kennedy or, perhaps, nearly all of Sen. Kennedy in part.

He is pleasant to know; he has some very admirable qualities. But he is not easy to know. He does not expose his private self readily. He has the apparent ebullience of youth but his ebullience is always under control. He is a cool individual.

There is no doubt, I think, that it will take the American voters some time before they will feel they have a basis for measuring the person and the personality of this forty-three-year-old politician from Massachusetts who has so calmly, so efficiently, taken both the Presidential nomination and control of the Democratic party away from such veteran and powerful professionals as Harry Truman, Lyndon Johnson, Sam Rayburn, Dave Lawrence of Pennsylvania, Pat Brown of California.

MY OWN VIEW is that Mr. Kennedy will need to be judged as the emergent Democratic Presidential nominee, not as Senator. The qualifications are not the same and the qualities which he will bring to bear in the contest with Richard Nixon will not not necessarily be the same as those he has displayed on the floor of the Senate.

But a preliminary report on Kennedy, the man and politician, can be made at this climax in a remarkable political career. Certainly those who have watched him in Massachusetts, in Washington, and in the recent primaries, have been impressed by these facets of the Kennedy character:

He has political courage and political stamina. He don't wilt under pressure and he is not afraid to take a definite political stand. He is more disposed to speak out than to hedge but rarely does he commit himself without deliberation. When he does, he can blunder like any other politician as when, after the Khrushchev explosion at the summit, he said off-the-cuff that President Eisenhower should have "expressed his regret" to Khrushchev for the U-2 flights.

He has an excellent mind, alert, probing, usually objective. He uses it. He often relies on others to furnish him basic facts. He does not rely on others to do his thinking.

He has an indomitable, even relentless, ambition to be President of the United States. He is neither shy nor retiring nor particularly modest nor humble. He is totally self-confident. His ambition strikes me as being about equal to Thomas E. Dewey's when he sought the Republican Presidential nomination in 1940 while serving as District Attorney of New York County. Despite his youth, Sen. Kennedy does not hesitate — and is able — to draw strong and independent-minded men around him such as Chester Bowles, Gov. Abe Ribicoff. He is at home equally with hard-headed politicians and high-domed intellectuals.

The Country Parson

"Anybody should be able to understand why our beliefs are better than the others — it's because they are ours."

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Convention Leaves Varied Impressions

By CHAPIN A. DAY

DAY

LOS ANGELES — Recollections of a national convention are a combination of many things. Some are personal. Some are about people. Some you have felt, some you saw, others you heard about.

There are impressions of dynamic, forceful men—and of small bunglers; of scheming and planning; of maneuvering and guessing, and of the tremendous, vital, basic strength of a political system which gathers more than 3,000 party leaders in one place at one time to decide among themselves who will be their candidate.

There is something serious and wonderful about a political convention. But there are some other things to be considered too. There was a young newsman from France attending to report for his papers. He'd been in the country less than three weeks and, although he spoke good English, he was unprepared for the denunciations and rejections of our present government which he heard from the speakers platform. "What," he asked, "can we in Europe rely upon if your country is as bad as you say it is?" He no doubt will also attend the Republican convention starting a week from Monday, and he will get impressions of a perfect society. Then he will really be confused.

OTHER RECOLLECTIONS

The smog, which the I-J editorially asked the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce to turn off for the convention, wasn't in evidence at all the first two days. But on Wednesday, nomination day, it was present and voting. Luckily all newsmen were furnished with a squeeze bottle of eye medicine.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of Kent Woodlands, California National Committeewoman, was the envy of all the men lucky enough to have cars assigned them. Libby's driver was a cute young USC coed; all the men had male chauffeurs.

Mrs. Nacy Swadesh of Mill Valley, who as a member of the platform committee spent days helping to write its planks, went off the floor for a cup of coffee with alternate Harold Morgan while the platform was being read. When they returned, Morgan said to Roger Kent, "Who's the fellow up there now and when will we get around to voting on civil rights?"

"That man," declared Kent, "is giving the benediction."

Mrs. Swadesh, who had worked on it so hard, missed her chance to vote for the platform, and Morgan an alternate only on the floor part of the time, missed his chance to vote at all.

Kent, who was vice chairman of the delegation, quite often sat in as chief of the delegation when Senator Clair Engle had to leave. In this seat, at his right hand was a telephone which had a white light on it instead of a bell. Kent was dying to use it, but the light never lighted while he was there. A couple of times he picked it up tentatively, but no one was on the other end so he hung up.

Bennet Skewes-Cox of Ross who as chairman of the California Democratic Council's foreign policy unit, wasn't so happy as he might have been with party platform. He felt too much prominence was being given to "restoring our nation's physical strength," and not enough to bringing an end to the arms race. He felt the disarmament portion of the plank might well have preceded the section dealing with "closing the gap" in armaments. But he was happy that disarmament suggestions, including a Peace Agency, got into the platform at all. "It's a step forward," he declared.

THERE WAS some interesting speculation going around about whether the Republican victory in 1952 hadn't ruined the GOP power in California. So many of the top Republican leaders were called back to Washington that there weren't enough left in California to keep the party together. Would it happen to the Democrats if they elect a president in November? Demo leaders didn't seem to be worrying about it.

By this time next Saturday I'll be in Chicago preparing to report the Republican National Convention. More politics then.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Economy Bloc Chided On Raise

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:
In spring the Marin voters,
Of Budgetry aware,
Elected Messrs. Ludy,
Fusselman, and Blair.

On point of fiscal spending
These stalwarts stood, three-square:
"Slash it!" declaimed Ludy,
Fusselman, and Blair.

"We'll lower all the taxes;
Assessments will be fair!"
—This platform bespoke Ludy,
Fusselman, and Blair.

So, it's with some disquiet
We now became aware
Of a raise in pay to Ludy,
Fusselman, and Blair!

(Not to Gnoss or Castro—
"No Increase" is their share;)
But a hundred bucks to Ludy,
Fusselman, and Blair!

Therefore, we have a question:
(Sort of anti-laissez-faire)
—Were you kidding, Messrs. Ludy,
Fusselman, and Blair?

Or do you see your duty,
And of such expense beware?
—Don't take it, Messrs. Ludy,
Fusselman, and Blair!

Sincerely,
BEN CHAMBERLAIN
Sausalito.

Some Families May Be Better Off Because Of Work Furloughs

EVER SINCE they started the work furlough program at the county jail, some of the less fortunate families in town are probably better off with the Old Man in jail.

The breadwinner goes out to work each morning and comes home to the jail on the dot each night and weekends. That means the good wife knows exactly where her husband is each night, the kids are assured of support (taken out of the father's pay) and those damaged get restitution.

A REPORT BY Probation Officer Walter Busher and work furlough officer Ernie Zunino shows that during the past year, prisoners on work furlough earned a total of $58,000. Of that amount, $28,000 went to their dependents for support, $12,500 to the county for reimbursement of cost, $1,500 paid as fines, $2,600 to injured parties for restitution, and $1,500 to pay for their past debts.

Seems like a big improvement over the old days when a man, caught by the law, merely plunked himself in his cell and said in effect:

"I'm flat broke. Can't pay the fine or restitution. Glad to go to jail. You just feed me and my family, so there!"

A DRIVER RAN his car into the highway patrol scales north of town the other night. Police Chief Charlie Chiesa, who is accustomed to almost anything, greeted that report with this deadpan comment: "He probably had a load on, and had to see how much he weighed."

That 7-year-old boy who went over Niagara Falls and lived probably won't have to look for a job. Major insurance companies are reported ready to offer him a job selling life insurance.

YOU JUST DON'T go sneaking in to swim in Fred Hooper's pool in San Anselmo without an invitation. The last time we tried it, there was a live alligator swimming around, guarding the plunge.

If you think the Tokyo riot was bad, you oughta attend one of the hot Pony League games at Albert Field. Tomorrow for instance. They're laying odds that fireworks will break out any moment now.

San Rafael is probably the only town in the nation where A and B Streets come to a right angle intersection. Bill Bagley, campaigning for the Assembly, thought he was seeing things when he hit that corner. But there it was—the south end of A Street taking a 90 degree turn and hitting B Street broadside.

PARKING METER supervisor Lowell Zunino was collecting meter coins on Fourth Street the other morning. One meter coughed up a car key, along with the nickels and pennies. Some absent minded motorist apparently dropped the key into the slot.

Fragments of a broken slot machine are lying unclaimed at the sheriff's office. The owner is welcome to drop in for a little chat with the investigators. They want to know how it got to Fairfax, and what it was doing on Laura Lane.

REMEMBER WHEN

10 YEARS AGO

Marin County supervisors added Mill Valley's Miller Avenue, between Montford Avenue and Tamalpais High School, to the county highway system, as well as Strawberry's Belvedere Drive.

A San Rafael Board of Education committee recommended establishment fo a program of "health education in family living" as part of the school curriculum.

Matt Graham and Leland Murphy, Marin's two Golden Gate Bridge District directors, were well roasted by critics at the supervisors' weekly meetings because they hadn't provided toll cuts for commuters.

20 YEARS AGO

Coincident with the 1940 census, Wilfred C. Gruit of the San Rafael office of the Department of Employment was making an inventory of people in search of work. He showed 1,588 active applications for employment—1,204 men and 384 women.

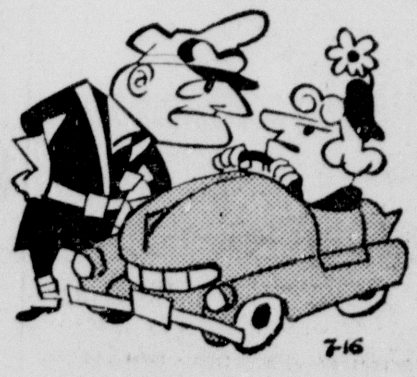

Despite some protest that a religious issue was being brought into the political realm, Marin County supervisors passed a resolution for a "Moral Rearmament Week for National Unity."

Though the dairy industry led all others in Marin County, Agricultural Commissioner Thurman Peryam said that artichokes and peas were coming to the fore fast.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

Pinched for speeding by a cop who had camouflaged himself behind a bush, Mrs. Kadison angrily put the summons in her pocketbook and later when back home, sighed to her husband, "Oh, for the good old days when cops did not hide out, but took their chances in traffic like everybody else!"

The New Haven had installed a portable bar in one of its commuter trains, but it was not fastened securely to the floor, and on one sharp curve near Rye, N. Y., it toppled over, spilling drinks. One evening a regular commuter startled Jerome Beatty by predicting, "In precisely two minutes that bar is going to fall over!" It did, too, just as the train hit the curve.

Lucille Chase in "Skirts Aloft" reports the biggest bite ever recorded. An unfortunate passenger reported the loss of his dentures in flight. Eventually, the upper plate was found in Chicago and the lower in Jacksonville, Florida!

WHAT IS CERTAINLY one of Marin's most unusual crops as well as one of its fastest growing industries will be studied in next week's issue of your Marin Magazine. We will take you on a visit to the oyster beds of the Johnson Oyster Co. on Drake's Estero, Tomales Bay and Bolinas Bay. You will learn from veterans of the industry just how they raise their crop and how the business operates. And you will see pictures such as this of the oyster growers at work.

Not A Worry In The Crowd As Folk Dancers Cavort On Green

FISHING MAY well be the perfect pastime for those who like to forget their problems through complete relaxation and inner contemplation. But folk dancing must serve that same purpose equally well for those who prefer to kick up their heels a bit as their change of pace from everyday life and its cares.

Anyway, we've never seen a more carefree, happier bunch than the participants in last Sunday's big folk dancing festival on the College of Marin campus at Kentfield.

If there was a worry in the crowd, we couldn't detect it.

Men and women of all ages and sizes, as well as children, were cavorting and obviously having the time of their lives.

It sets you back a bit when you first realize that the graying and a bit paunchy fellow cutting capers out there on the green in a gaudy costume is the same person as the staid professional man you see every day in conservative business suit and tie. But you soon get used to the change. And you like him the better for it.

We found the festival to be, from the spectators' viewpoint, an extremely colorful and entertaining affair. And it was apparent that from the participants' standpoint, the whole thing was a barrel of fun.

The authentic costumes of a score of different nationalities were alone worth the trip to Kentfield.

And the costumed kids, the little girls usually in pigtails, were as cute as could be.

The exhibitions by individual dance groups represented hours of practice and considerable skill that sometimes bordered on the professional.

But what we liked best were the general "free-for-all" dances with everyone present invited to join in.

In these days it is not too often that you run into an activity in which people of all ages can participate at the same time. The children have their separate interests, the teen-agers their's, the young married couples their's. The middle-agers go their exclusive way, and the senior citizens their's—or are forgotten altogether.

But in the squares, the circles and the lines for the folk dances, there were no age barriers. Teen-agers danced alongside of and with grandparents. And the oldsters more than held their own.

We think that must be one of the greatest values of an activity of this kind. Certainly, there is too little contact now in many respects between generations. And that may well account for much misunderstanding and suspicion between age groups.

WE'VE ALWAYS been fascinated by square dance callers. And those we heard at Sunday's festival and at the Marin Art and Garden Fair were especially impressive.

Back in the Midwest, the "callers" were just that. They talked or shouted, not sang, although there was a sing-song quality to their voices.

But out here the "callers" are true "singers." In fact their voices would put many of our present-day crooners to shame.

NOTES GLEANED on a weekend visit to picturesque Tiburon:

Mrs. Sandy (Felix) Warburg has a first book coming out next month for the kids, ages 3 to 6. "All about nice things to think about," she says . . . The colorful Backstage Coffee House is now setting 'em up as late as 4 a.m. on Fridays and Saturdays . . . Kirby Atterbury, chef-yachtsman, entertained the cast of "Suzie Wong" at his Caprice restaurant the other day . . . Leonard Linn of the gift shop once ran a similar enterprise in Winnetka, Ill., "before falling in love with Marin," he says. . . . Mrs. Christine Henderson of the Scandia (furniture) shop must be one of Marin's youngest interior decorators. She's just 24.

Dr. Frederic Drexler's Three Careers

He's Served Humanity Well As Pastor, Newspaper Publisher And Educator

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Three or four careers in one lifetime, even if it does cover an 82-year span, are noteworthy.

Dr. Frederic I. Drexler of Mill Valley has had three major careers as a minister, newspaper publisher and educator. In addition he served as manager and lecturer for two years on a Chautauqua circuit.

Retired and living alone in the family home at 18 Buena Vista Avenue since his wife died in 1958, Dr. Drexler retains an active interest in affairs of the Baptist Church, travels, and keeps busy with his hobbies of collecting fine books and complete operas, of which he has more than 90.

His career in the ministry started when he was 19 and continued until he felt the need of earning more money to educate his children. Next came the two years on the Chautauqua circuit. These were followed by his purchase of a newspaper in Riverdale, which grew into a chain of six and led eventually to his purchase of the Mill Valley Record.

DR. DREXLER began his work as an educator when he founded in 1944 the California Baptist Theological Seminary, now located at Covina. During that seminary's commencement exercises on May 31 of this year he was made its first trustee emeritus, or lifetime elder statesman, in its councils.

Each of his careers has had its own rewarding memories for Dr. Drexler, whose story started on May 2, 1878, in the town of Tyrnan, Hungary.

Frederic Ignatius, his sister Mollie (now Mrs. Haas of Chicago) and brother Rudolph were the children of Julia and Samuel Drexler, a very successful man in the grocery business until an unfortunate low bid on government supplies ruined him financially.

Of his childhood in Hungary the clergyman remembers only two incidents.

"I'll never forget flooding the basement of my uncle's grocery store with two or three inches of syrup when I forgot to turn off the spigot of a barrel," he reminisces.

The other vivid memory is of proving "scientifically" that a star falls when a person dies, and his soul ascends to heaven.

"KNOWING A certain man was very ill, a boy friend and I walked and walked one evening until we saw a falling star. Sure enough—the next day we learned he had died that night."

Hoping to recoup the family fortunes, Samuel Drexler took his family to America in 1884 when Frederic was 6 years old, and they lived within a few doors of the house where Mrs. O'Leary's cow had, according to legend, kicked over the lantern that started the great Chicago fire of 1871.

AT 82 DR. FREDERIC I. DREXLER remains active and keenly interested in affairs of the Baptist Church. He is currently serving temporarily as minister of the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley, shown here. In addition to being a minister, Dr. Drexler has been a newspaper publisher, an educator, and a Chautauqua Circuit lecturer. (Independent-Journal photo)

For years Frederic sold newspapers on Chicago street corners. Forced to quit school when he was 13 and in the seventh grade, he worked first 60 hours a week for $2.25 a week as cash boy in a department store. After that he became a printer's devil.

"I kicked a press for 10 hours a day—work that is something like pumping an organ. That was the way presses were operated until the gasoline engine came in to do the work.

"MY MOST vivid memory of this period is of hearing the speech Eugene V. Debbs made when he came out of prison, where he had served time in connection with the riot over the great railroad strike.

"Those were the days when President Grover Cleveland said, 'The government owes its citizens nothing. The citizens of the country owe the government everything.'

"I've reared my children according to that idea, and I think they've turned out pretty well.

"Another time on the lake front I barely escaped getting my head bashed in when the police closed in quietly on a gang of earringed Sicilians I was watching as they talked of the 'coming revolution.'

"William Kent, father of the Kent brothers of Marin County, was my hero in the days when I was shouting newspapers on the streets of Chicago. He was the leader and spearhead in cleaning out the most corrupt city council that Chicago had ever had up to that time. His success in this task was temporary, for Chicago does not feel natural when it is cleaned up.

"When I was 19, I decided to be a minister and took advantage of the offer of a man to help some boy go into the Baptist ministry.

"For two years he paid my room and board at two dollars a week plus 25 cents spending money, that I had to account for carefully.

"Since it was possible to get an education more cheaply in the South than in the North, I enrolled in the American University, no longer in existence, at Harriman, Tenn.

"THERE I became interested immediately in blue-eyed, golden-haired Jessie Day, 16-year-old daughter of a Baptist minister."

The young couple "kept company" throughout their school years, although during a three year period Frederic spent at Crozer Seminary near Philadelphia, they saw each other only once.

After Frederic completed his studies, they were married in 1904 in Harriman, and he obtained his first pastorate in Minot, N.D.

"At that time I was sure two could live as cheaply as one," Dr. Drexler continued. "We lived in an attic without running water and only the heat from the oven of a gas stove—this during winters with temperatures 30 degrees below zero for five weeks running. We even went hungry at times, as many missionaries in those days did.

"Our first child, Charlotte, was born there.

"We couldn't stand the rigors of the climate—so we went to Fowlerville, Mich.

"Our older son Day was born there. But things were not much better there, and my wife developed tuberculosis and had to spend some time in a sanitarium."

AFTER THAT the Drexlers moved to California, where Dr. Drexler occupied the pulpit at Willows, Oakland and Fresno. Their second son Fred was born in Oakland.

While the family was in Fresno, Charlotte became old enough to go to college. Her father decided, in order to make such an education possible, to take the better paying position as manager and lecturer on a Chatauqua circuit. His subject was the rise of Communism.

"After two years on the road, the two older children were getting too much for their mother to handle—so I bought a newspaper in the little village of Riverdale."

Here it was that Dr. Drexler made the acquaintance of Roy Brown, present publisher of the Independent-Journal, who had begun his career in the newspaper business in the neighboring town of Sanger.

"Our paper grew into a chain of six small village weeklies, and I had enough success to be written up by the Saturday Evening Post as an example of success in the field of village newspapers.

"But at the same time Roy Brown was successful on a big scale. I've always admired him for the way he has met the competition of the big city dailies. I think the Independent-Journal is one of the best small city dailies in the United States, and it has deserved the honors it has received.

"Although I envied Brown's success," Dr. Drexler smiled, "I got a little comfort out of thinking I could preach a better sermon than he could."

After Fred was graduated from Redlands University, their father took him and Day on an 18,000 mile trip throughout the United States, which he felt was the equivalent of the grand tour of Europe that completed the education of European young men in earlier days.

LATER HE and Mrs. Drexler made three trips abroad, and after she died, he spent five and a half months in Europe, returning last October.

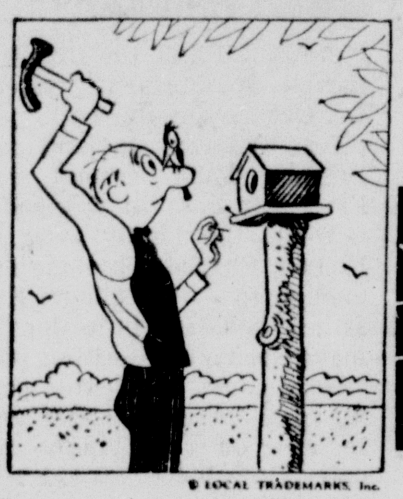

With his daughter married to Roger Walch, a corporation lawyer in Hanford, and his two boys educated, Dr. Drexler decided to retire and bought the Mill Valley record to give them a start in life. Fred became editor and Day became shop manager.

While the Drexlers were living in Southern California, Dr. Drexler, impressed with the fact that there were no theological seminaries in the area whereas in San Francisco there were many, felt it his duty to found one.

Started in 1944, the California Seminary by 1958 had an enrollment of 350. "It is now the greatest source of Baptist ministers in the West for the American Baptist Convention," Dr. Drexler notes with pride.

In recognition of his services the seminary conferred on him the honorary degree of doctor of divinity, as well as the other honors mentioned in the beginning of this article.

Dr. Drexler was also made a life member of the board of directors of the American Baptist Union of the San Francisco Bay Area, as well as a life member of the board of the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley, where he is now serving temporarily as minister. Another activity is writing for church papers.

In addition to his work with the seminary Dr. Drexler started a unique educational venture while he was at Willows. This consisted of a plan to help agricultural schools and colleges spread knowledge among farmers of the revolutionary mehods being developed. But for the outbreak of World War I, he might have become known as an educational leader in agriculture.

UNDER A PLAN he organized with the agricultural school of the University of California at Davis, 350 ministers from the Mexican to the Oregon border were given a week's intensive explanation of the new methods.

"Free transportation was provided by the Southern Pacific Railroad, as well as free rooms and meals by the university. It was probably the largest interdenominational gathering of clergymen this state has ever seen," Dr. Drexler declared.

The ministers then returned home to teach what they had learned to the innately conservative farmers in their parishes.

But World War I set the world ablaze before they could carry out the plan beyond the first year, and by the time the war ended the farmers had become familiar with the new methods.

Dr. Drexler's last trip to Europe was centered around his cultural interests, particularly music and most particularly opera. Maria Callas is his favorite opera star, "not necessarily because of her voice, but because of her dramatic ability."

During this trip, he claims, he became probably the only Mill Valley man who ever fell into the Adriatic Sea and then was robbed.

"WE REACHED Venice when it was very dark. I hired a porter to transfer my baggage to one of the gasoline launches that are more common now than the gondolas. When I lifted my foot to step from the launch, right behind the porter, onto to what I thought was solid ground, I fell into the water as the launch moved a few feet away. If two men hadn't pulled out immediately, I would have been crushed.

"Adding insult to injury was the circumstance that in the ensuing commotion someone picked my pocket of a fifty dollar bill."

Since his return to Mill Valley Dr. Drexler has been very busy with his own interests and those of his family.

Residents of Mill Valley are Mr. and Mrs. Day Drexler and their daughter Donna, who attends Park School. Day has remained as foreman of the shop at the Mill Valley Record.

Also living in Mill Valley are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Drexler and their three children: Kenneth, a student at Stanford University, Roger, a Tamalpais High School junior, and Martha, who attends the Marin Country Day School.

Fred is an executive vice president and secretary and member of the board of directors of Industrial Indemnity, a Bechtel Corp. in San Francisco.

A granddaughter, Joan, Mrs. Strothers Jones VI, daughter of the Roger Walches of Hanford, lives in Sleepy Hollow with her husband and three children, 3-year-old Charlotte and six-months-old twins, Barbara and Strothers Jones VII.

COMMENTING ON the keys to a good marriage (the Drexlers celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary in 1954) and to a satisfying life in later years Dr. Drexler said:

"In marriage the most important things are having patience—both partners should never get angry at the same time—and common interest in the church of their choice.

"As for a satisfying old age, I stress developing interests outside of one's job. And naturally for me as a minister, my activities in the church are most important."

PHOTOGRAPHED WITH their dog, "Rowdy," on the porch of the family home they purchased 25 years ago were Mr. and Mrs. Frederic I. Drexler. The late Mrs. Drexler also took an active interest in the church and was a leader in Baptist affairs.

Two Convicts Who Mended Their Ways

By DR. LEO L. STANLEY

Unless a man really wants to go straight, all the effort and expense of trying to rehabilitate him and change his moral pattern will be of no value to him or to anyone else.

In my days as prison surgeon there were two men who stood out particularly for beating their way back to useful and honorable citizenship. These were young men when they came to prison. But they had it in them to see the folly of their ways, to overcome the handicap of being in prison, and to have a great desire to prove to the world that they could reform, in spite of the fates which had befallen them.

DR LEO L. STANLEY
His boys made good

Three young men, scarcely out of their teens, had been discharged from the Army in San Francisco shortly after World War I. Their great desire was to return home to Indiana. Why they did not have sufficient funds, I do not know.

BUT THEY hired a taxi to take them down the Peninsula. Near Colma they seized the driver, forced him to alight, and trussed him up tightly. In the struggle one of the boys strick him over the head. They threw him into some bushes, where his lifeless body was later found.

The three fled in the taxi, but were apprehended near Reno. All were sent to San Quentin for the crime.

Two of the boys were just no good. Why, no one can tell. But they got into trouble again, and, now, after these long years, are still confined in eastern penitentiaries.

But the third one, let us call him Fletcher though that is not his name, did make good.

Early we found him to be intelligent and repentant, and with a great desire to atone for the part he had taken in the murder. He took great interest in his work, no matter what duties to which he was assigned.

We managed to get him into the hospital as janitor and general clean-up man. He was studious and observant. He learned from the other technicians and was soon able to do many of the tests and much of the laboratory work. In time he became the head inmate laboratory technician under our tutelege.

He worked indefatigably. He read diligently and studied hard. He helped in some of our research work, and even devised apparatus for some of our experiments.

WE GREW TO have the greatest confidence in him. He later became our head inmate X-ray technician as well.

After many years, Fletcher was paroled to a hospital in the East. There he continued his excellent work, and inspired the confidence of the staff. On a trip through that part of the country, I stopped in to see him. He was doing well, and respected by those with whom he was associated. Few knew of his past difficulties.

Not long ago he branched out in a small manufacturing business of his own. He has prospered.

Recently he wrote me inviting me to spend a summer vacation with him and his wife at their vacation camp on a pretty lake in Canada.

Another of "my boys" who made good was likewise only a lad when he was sent to San Quentin.

He had been implicated in a drug store robbery in which the proprietor had been shot to death. This boy, let us call him Rodney, came from a good family and had a devoted mother. But, for some reason, he got to chumming around with another boy who was to eventually come to his death at the end of five feet of Manila rope on the gallows of San Quentin.

Just what attraction for Rodney this killer, "The Fox," had, no one knows. It was a sinister influence. For Rodney had no hesitation in joining him when a robbery or a possible killing might take place.

FORTUNATELY for Rodney, he was not in on the kidnap killing for which The Fox paid the death penalty. It was another Fox-inspired crime in which Rodney was involved.

Rodney was under 20 when he came to San Quentin. In examining him and in subsequent interviews I saw there were some good things in the lad and that he had rehabilitation possibilities. And he seemed to have respect and a sort of admiration for me. Possibly I represented the father figure to him. I understand his own father had failed him.

He was assigned to our hospital. Like Fletcher, he diligently applied himself. He "kept his nose clean," as the convicts put it, never entering into any alliances, schemes or intrigues that might jeopardize the good opinion prison officials had begun to form of him.

He, too, studied hard and became one of our best inmate hospital and laboratory attendants. He was able to do and perfect tests at which we marveled. And we gave him every encouragement and praised his efforts.

WITH THE passing of 10 years he was paroled. And later, because he had maintained a good record and appeared to be completely rehabilitated, he was given a full pardon by the governor.

He kept at the laboratory work he had learned at San Quentin. He subsequently founded his own clinical laboratory and has for a number of years rendered excellent and efficient service. Few are aware of his earlier troubles.

Again these two isolated instances show that, if a man has it in him, he can overcome his mistakes of youth, go the straight path and prove himself a worthy and respected citizen.

IN THIS HOSPITAL clinical laboratory at San Quentin the young men referred to as Fletcher and Rodney by Dr. Leo L. Stanley, then chief medical officer at the prison, began their comebacks which were to return them to society as useful citizens. Men in photo are non-inmate staff members.

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By Bert Brown, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael and Bel Aire
Member Textile Maintenance Committee University of California

"Why Did Holes Appear in My Dress Design?"—Mrs. A. E. T.

Dear Mrs. A. E. T.:

Those white dots in your dress turned to holes when the dress was dry cleaned. You want to know why. Your dry cleaner should be able to tell you, and if he says it wasn't his fault, he isn't making excuses.

The dots or any other pattern on such a fabric are made by what is known as a "discharge print." First the fabric is dyed an overall color. Then the pattern, or the dot in your case, is printed on the fabric. The "discharge" agent removes the color from the fabric in the desired areas and the pattern appears in white.

In some cases this dye-removing method weakens the fabric and holes result from either wear or dry cleaning. Or the effect of sunlight will turn the white portion of the fabric back to its original color.

All discharge prints do not act this way, of course. The holes we described occur only when the textile printer has used too strong a discharge compound or failed to rinse the dye-remover properly from the fabric. Then the white areas become weakened. This damage can be avoided when the manufacturer or pattern - printer gives the fabric a complete rinsing or neutralization after printing.

The fabric was weakened before you purchased the dress Mrs. A. E. T. The holes might have occurred simply from wear. Your best protection is to make certain the source of your purchase is reliable and will stand back of garments that do not give the service they should.

Why Take Ballroom Dance Lessons?

A Visit To A San Rafael Studio Provides You With The Answers

By
M. ELIZABETH JOHNSTON

Does Arthur Murray really teach dancing in a hurry? Exactly what and how does an Arthur Murray studio teach?

These were some of the questions in my mind as I drove to the San Rafael studio at 2130 Fourth Street. There I first interviewed the manager, Mrs. Louise Robello, as a regular prospective pupil would — except that I asked more questions.

What kind of people take ballroom dancing lessons and why?

According to Mrs. Robello, there are many kinds of people who take lessons and they have a wide variety of motives. Some want to improve their health, to reduce, or to have a pleasurable form of exercise. Sometimes, loneliness is the motive, and sociability is sought. Sometimes dancing lessons fill an interlude in a person's life; it bridges over a period in which they need a new interest. Professional people often take up dancing to relax, to improve their social poise and/or their professional manner.

A YOUNG doctor, who had learned his profession well, found that he did not have the ability to convey confidence to his patients. As a busy medical student he had allowed himself practically no social life. Taking lessons at the Arthur Murray studio gave him some social contact and poise, as well as the social accomplishment of dancing. Before long he found himself expressing the confidence he felt in his ability as a doctor.

For busy people who do not have a lot of time for recreation, dancing develops a creative urge, a way for them to express themselves in the short periods of time they can fit into their crowded schedules, such as the Saturday night dinner dance.

When they have an opportunity to talk to young people about dancing, Mrs. Robello and her staff try to convince them that now while they are young is the time to learn dancing. Too, many people wait until they are older and miss a lot of fun along the way, she says.

"This is not a lonely-hearts club, of course," smiles Mrs. Robello, "but we find romance blooming occasionally among pupils, even among the teachers, and an Arthur Murray wedding is not unusual."

COACHES sometimes bring athletes to the studio to learn gr cefulness, to improve their control and poise, their coordination, balance, timing. Young girls often come for lessons before their debut, so they will look their graceful best as they make their bow to society and cha-cha the night away.

A local doctor takes dancing lessons, not only for physical but for mental exercise as well. He says learning something new keeps him young.

One pupil who came to the studio from Hamilton Air Force Base was a middle-aged second lieutenant, an Irishman from the Midwest. He had some time on his hands and wanted to learn to dance.

When Mrs. Robello asked him what kind of a dancer he wanted to be, he replied: "Well, I'll tell you. Back home my wife and I belong to a country club, and they have a nice clubhouse with a big veranda around it. On Saturday nights they have a buffet supper and an orchestra and — they dance! I'd like to be able to walk up to a group of fellow members at the club and not see this look on the women's faces: 'Ye Gods! Here comes O'Malley again!'"

During World War II another soldier came to the studio to learn some contemporary dance steps. His fox trot looked rather mechanical, so Mrs. Robello suggested that some tango lessons might give more variety and style to his fox trot steps. The soldier laughed.

Back home in Nebraska, he said, the big events of the year were (1) the Fireman's Ball, and (2) the Strawberry Festival, and he couldn't picture himself doing the tango on either occasion. However, he finally consented to take a few tango lessons. Soon after, he was shipped out. A month later, he sent a letter from Buenos Aires, which read: "Here I am! and thanks to you, I know enough tango to get out on the floor and get started."

YOU CAN'T learn all there is to know about dancing, in a hurry, of course. It takes time and practice to train muscles. Sometimes it takes people longer than they think it should because they don't realize the discipline it requires to learn to dance well.

However, the Arthur Murray method can teach some of the steps and techniques very quickly and I can bear witness to this, after a few trial lessons. "Give us one hour with a beginner who feels hopeless and he will not be so sure he cannot dance, or that he has no sense of rhythm," says Mrs. Robello. "Actually, there isn't any such thing as a person with no sense of rhythm. Did you ever see a baby who didn't bounce or move his arms in response to music."

An insurance executive who came to the studio said he had finally promised his wife he would take some lessons and learn to dance. He put his hat on the table and said sadly: "I might as well tell you, I have no sense of rhythm." Mrs. Robello asked him why he thought so.

"Well," said the executive, "I went to a dance once and tried to get around the floor but my partner looked very unhappy; finally, she told me I had no business on the floor at all because I had absolutely no rhythm!" This, he said, occurred in his high-school days when he was 14 and his dancing partner 13.

"Do you mean to tell me," asked Mrs. Robello, "that all these years—from age 14 to age 55—you have taken the word of a little 13-year-old girl as authority that you can't dance?"

THE EXECUTIVE smiled through a red-tinged face and admitted it did sound ridiculous, even to him. He became a very good dancer.

What does it take to make a good dancer?

Instruction, plus mileage. Sixty per cent of the pupils are beginners. Many, however, are dancers who wish to learn new dances, or better styling and technique.

Arthur Murray has been in the dance instruction business for over 45 years. Qualified Arthur Murray-trained studio managers operate under a franchise.

An important requisite to learning is that the pupil must want to learn to dance. During the war, Murray teachers taught amputees to dance. Some of the leg amputees at nearby Mare Island were included. An amputee can more easily learn to walk on an artificial limb after learning to dance first. Dancing lends a confidence that breaks down the mental qualms about being able to walk on artificial limbs.

Murray studios give charity

Learning To Dance With Arthur Murray

lessons to other handicapped people. They find that blind pupils never bump into others on the floor as sighted pupils do. Dancing gives the blind a better sense of balance. Polio patients often find their physical condition as well as their morale better because of dancing exercise.

Deaf and dumb pupils are taught through vibrations and hand signals.

Handicapped people usually work harder at it than those who are not handicapped.

DANCING teaches one to walk better, have better posture (which is good for health as well as for appearance), look better in clothes, and—feel better!

After a brief interview with Mrs. Robello, in which she finds out your background in dancing and makes the necessary business arrangements, you are turned over to one of two dance-analysts. If you are a man, you will have the pleasure of being dance analyzed by Lucy Caldwell, a petite brunette who doubles as the receptionist. Miss Caldwell trained in Santa Monica. She is married to another Murray instructor who now works at the San Francisco studio.

If you are a woman, you will dance, as I did, with Robert Harris, dance analyst and supervisor. It is the job of the analyst to find out how well you dance now, how many hours it will take you to learn what you want to know, and how much work must be covered to accomplish all this. Each pupil is given individual treatment. If he does not learn the steps in the estimated time, he is then given lessons without charge until he has reached his goal.

Harris has danced several times at the Smooth-Dancers' Ball, and smooth is a good word for the way he does every type of dance step. He is the dancing proof that the Murray formula works, for he had never danced until he was 29. Then, after lessons at an Arthur Murray studio, where, he insists, he learned slowly and laboriously at first, he became so enthusiastic about dancing he progressed to the course for teachers.

A chart is made for each pupil by the dance analyst, on which a complete record including progress is carefully kept. If a pupil's regular teacher should be absent, another teacher could pick up his chart and carry on.

LESSONS AT a dance studio sound like a rather vague process to the layman, but at Arthur Murray's the procedure is businesslike. Arthur Murray insists his pupils get their money's worth. After each exam, progress is noted on such points as rhythm, balance, cooperation, animation, self-confidence, natural ability, following (or leading), ability to learn, posture, interest, etc.

When the dance analyst completes his phase of the work, he turns the new pupil over to an instructor. I had the pleasure of taking lessons from each of the male teachers. But, of course, it is best for a pupil under ordinary circumstances to stick to one teacher. However, if a pupil feels he wants to change instructor, he may do so.

After dancing with Harris and having some instruction on the tango, foxtrot and rumba, I was next turned over to Ronald Stevenson, who came west from Rhode Island. He took lessons in San Rafael when he was in the service at Hamilton. When he was separated from the armed forces, he completed his course and is now teaching full-time. Stevenson guided me through some "cha-cha" steps, which get to be fun after you know what you are doing. He also showed me some "swing" steps.

Stevenson was also the teacher for the large class of 162 children from the Terra Linda Dixie School District, who recently concluded a series of Friday night once a month dance lessons. Murray does not teach rock and roll, and these lessons are given partly to encourage youngsters to learn other ballroom dances before they think rock and roll is the only dance there is.

Here, Stevenson had a different demeanor. He was a quiet but firm disciplinarian. The children, aged 12 to 14 (seventh and eighth graders) were given instruction in social manners as well as dancing.

The final lesson was held at the Santa Venetia School during the last week of June. Stevenson addressed the boys as "gentlemen" and the girls as "ladies" and required the young ladies to wear white gloves, and the young gentlemen their coats in correct ballroom style.

The teacher reviewed the steps for them. Then the group danced to recorded music. Occasionally a couple would step out and ask the teacher for a little further help on some point. They had learned several steps in the fox trot and in the cha-cha. After one dance, Stevenson asked if anyone had had any trouble. One tall, blond boy spoke up as he pointed at his partner: "Yes, she stepped all over my feet!"

The conduct was very good—even at refreshment time, when they had to line up and walk (not run) to the refreshment table.

Harris remarked that he likes to get teeners to take a long view of dancing. On a lifetime basis, rock and roll doesn't have much future, he noted, for when a lad grows up and takes his wife to the Fairmont Hotel in her new dancing dress, or when he dances with the boss' wife at the Country Club, it is not the rock and roll that is appropriate. Nor does rock and roll teach young bodies the qualities such as poise, grace, good posture.

There are several standard courses at Arthur Murray's. A beginner can graduate from the Bronze Standard (course) to the Silver Standard and, ultimately, to the Gold Standard. Each course contains a program charted out for the individual's need. The basic dances taught in all these courses are: fox trot, waltz, cha cha, merengue, swing, rumba, mambo, tango and samba.

The merengue is a fairly new dance which has an interesting history. The tale goes that in a Central American country, there is a town whose mayor has an artificial limb and he cannot do the dances everyone else does. So to include the mayor in their fiesta dancing, the people of the town invented the merengue—a dance where one leg is held stiff and the other leg is used to propel one around the floor.

MY NEXT instructor, Mario Lopez showed me some merengue steps, which I have never seen before, much less danced. But such was the dexterity of the teacher that I sometimes felt I knew what I was doing, even though I didn't!

Lopez is also the dance director. As you would expect from his name, he speaks Spanish beautifully. Some of his pupils practice their Spanish as well as their dancing when they take lessons from him.

Lopez took his training in San Rafael and has also worked in the San Francisco studio. Dancing with him is like flying with a pilot who you know has talent and experience and knows the course he intends to fly; you have perfect confidence in him.

From all three teachers I learned that people who think they know how to dance can still learn many things at a good studio. For instance, women should take longer steps backward. This not only looks more graceful, but they tell me it helps slim the figure. (It also keeps your feet from being stepped on as your partner steps forward!)

A woman should look over her partner's right shoulder instead of his left shoulder (except when dancing in an open position, such as the conversation step). Many of us women have a bad habit of looking around the dance floor, or over the left shoulder of our partner, which throws the body position out of balance for both dancers.

Another tip on technique most of us can profit by concerns the feet. Keep your feet close together and take even steps. Practice walking with your feet close together and this will improve your dancing style. It not only looks neater but it will help you to keep balanced and be ready to follow your partner more spontaneously.

MOST MEN could learn to be stronger "leaders" on the dance-floor.

For styling, women pupils are turned over to women teachers and men pupils have help on technique from the men teachers.

Louise Snyder emphasizes posture and carriage so much to her pupils, she can't help reminding her co-teachers of this, too, at times. She is gifted in dramatics as well as dancing. She has had about 10 years of experience in teaching dancing, has lived most of her life in Mill Valley and Sausalito, and has two children.

Returning to Mrs. Robello: She was a high school teacher on the East Coast who came to the San Francisco area on a visit and fell in love with it — particularly with Marin County. She worked at some office jobs, then trained to teach for a Murray studio.

She "just became enamored of the business" and learned all the jobs she could at the studio. Later, she bought a home in Mill Valley and asked for a franchise to open a studio in Marin. Her first studio opened in 1953.

Two years later, the Arthur Murrays visited her after a national convention. Arthur was impressed by the studio and staff, but thought the sign too small. Frankly, said Mrs. Robello, she thought the whole studio was too small. She asked Arthur if she could show him a lot she had in mind for a larger studio. Within a month after the Murrays returned to the East, Arthur sent a check for the lot she had impulsively showed him, and Mrs. Robello soon had the building erected where it now stands on Miracle Mile—with a nice, big sign you can easily see. The new studio was opened in 1956. The same year she married Louis Robello of San Rafael. Mrs. Robello's stepdaughter took lessons and entered the training class for teachers. She instructs at the Santa Rosa studio.

LIKE ELSA Maxwell, Mrs. Robello is a born hostess. She loves to plan and attend parties.

Regular pupils at an Arthur Murray studio are entitled to attend free practice sessions, or parties, given almost every Friday night. Sometimes they go in a group to San Francisco to a nightclub.

Every day Mrs. Robello and staff have a short conference in which the appointment book is gone over. Past, present and future plans for each student are discussed. Plans are gone over for a current party.

Compared with some other studios in larger cities, the one in San Rafael is small with a fairly small population to draw from. Yet it has thrived.

No doubt the Arthur Murray method of teaching is partially responsible for this success. But, after visiting the studio and meeting the staff, I'm convinced that the friendliness of Mrs. Robello and her aides, and their love of dancing and dedication to its instruction, are also sizeable factors.

The Old Folk Songs Are Back With Us

The hottest thing in the music world these days is neither jazz nor rock and roll. It's folk music.

Everywhere voices, professional and amateur alike and usually accompanied by a guitar are singing the sad stories of Tom Dooley, Barbara Allen and the other ill-fated heroes and heroines of folk music.

Witness the astonishing success in the field of the Bay Area's own Kingston Trio. And folk music festivals have grown to be just as popular and nearly as numerous as jazz festivals.

But it is among the non-professionals that folk music finds its true home. For a love of music and enjoyment of singing is far more important than great vocal talent in folk music circles. And just about anyone can rear back and sing a cowboy song or a hillbilly ballad in an acceptable manner.

The result has been the sprouting through the country of amateur folk singing workshops, organizations and programs.

MARIN HAS such a dedicated group.

It had its beginning midway in 1959 when a small group of folk music enthusiasts, calling themselves the Marin Folk Music Workshop, began holding informal songfests. Interest snowballed. And the result was the formation of the Marin Folk Music Appreciation Club which began holding regular meetings in private homes. The songfests which resulted are called "hootenannies."

At one such gathering of the Marin group no less than 15 guitars, two banjos, two bongo drums and one harmonica along with 60 voices were gathered under one roof. The result was some lusty renditions of "Down in the Valley," "Worried Man Blues," "Sloop John B" and other favorites—and an evening of sheer enjoyment for the participants.

Some club members formed car pools and traveled to concerts to hear noted artists such as Odetta and Josh White.

A carload of the Marin enthusiasts drove to Sacramento where they led the Sacramento Folk Music Society in a big and lively public hootenanny.

AT THE URGING of club members, a folk music class was offered as part of the adult education program at the College of Marin in Kentfield during the winter and attracted an enrollment of 50.

The club sponsored a discussion by a panel of Marin musicians of such questions as the relationship of jazz to folk music, and the degree of creativity possible in folk songs today.

Some other questions explored before a large audience:

To what do you attribute the recent popularity of folk music? What is your criteria for defining folk music, and how do we recognize it? Is folk music to be viewed only in a sociological or a historical perspective? What about the present day attitude toward spontaneous singing per se?

The club closed its initial season with a big hootenanny at the college that attracted 100 people of all ages.

RIGHT NOW the hootenannies have been suspended for the summer. But plans call for the completion of the formal organization of the club, including the election of a board of directors, at the first 1960-61 meeting in September.

Club leaders also expect to sponsor a series of hootenannies for children and for teenagers, and to continue a workshop project began this past season in which the instrumentalists assemble and work in trios on their music.

While no regular hootenannies are planned for the warm weather months, some special outdoor events including at least one beach sing will be held.

Club leaders say that members have expressed a particular desire for such outdoor events in which the entire family can participate.

Just who makes up the ranks of the folk music enthusiasts? Club leaders say the group includes persons of all ages and of all professions—doctors, teachers, carpenters, housewives, all attend. Those who cannot sing at all still enjoy listening.

Folk singing had its first heyday in the United States back in the time of the young West. Weary travelers making the great migration westward would gather around their campfires and sing about the homes they left behind. Often their songs were ballads that had been passed down through generations.

Or a family or a group of neighbors would gather around a cheery hearth in a cozy home for an evening of informal singing, accompanied by a fiddle or guitar, or simply the stamping of feet and clapping of hands.

BUT WITH the hustle and bustle of the twentieth century came other forms of entertainment. The old folk songs were all but forgotten.

What brought about the fairly recent resurgence of folk singing?

No two experts seem to be in complete agreement upon the answer. But some feel that no small factor is a yearning among Americans in this day of complex and busy living for a return to slower and simpler things.

Others will tell you that there never was any real danger that the folk songs would be forgotten.

"The music is just too good to be overlooked for long" they assert.

Some point out that folk singing has a particularly strong appeal for those interested in history.

"You listen to a folk song and you get a lesson in history," they say.

Whatever the reason, folk singing is back with us, and going strong. And it is likely to remain for some time to come.

As its Marin enthusiasts put it, "you spend an evening listening to or singing folk songs, and you go home completely relaxed and refreshed. You don't get that from watching television or very many of the other things we have learned to do with our spare time.

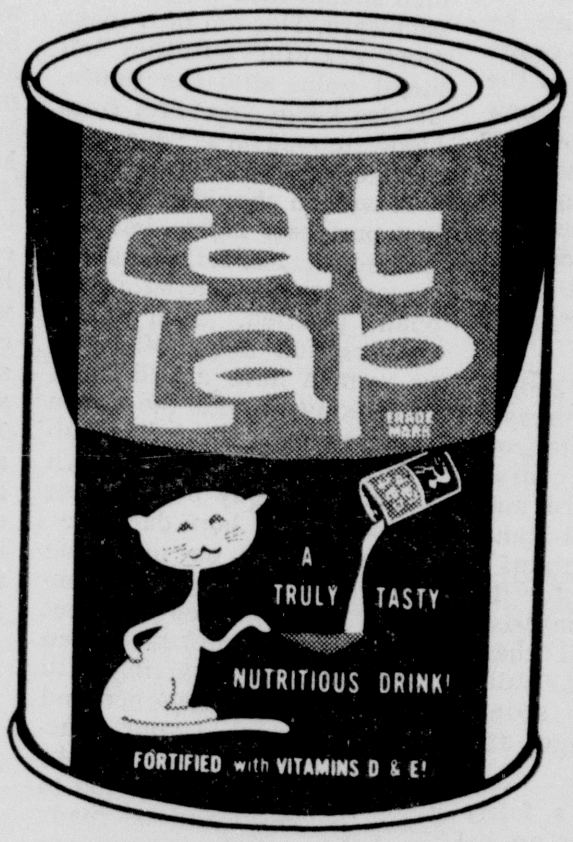

"Maybe the oldtimers had the best ideas after all."

Ho Ho -- A Marin Beauty Spot

Long Ago Era Recalled By Sketches

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

An era long gone in Marin, a time when there was lavish entertaining on large estates and guests spent weeks just not weekends at Marin homes, and when Chinese put their artistic talents to beautifying extensive grounds, is recalled by a recent gift from Mrs. Albert J. Evers of Ross to the museum of the Marin County Historical Society.

The gift is a portfolio of pen and ink sketches of Ho Ho, an estate at Larkspur adjacent to Kent Woodlands, by which a busy highway now passes.

It was in 1880 that Joseph Has Brouck, a scholarly man and member of an old Dutch family in New York State, bought the property. A tall, good looking man with graying hair, Has Brouck was a publisher of law books in San Francisco. The firm has continued as the Bancroft Whitney Co. Has Brouck came to San Francisco in 1865 and had his bachelor apartments at 925 Pine Street, where his business was located.

He bought the property at Larkspur the year he married Anginette Moyle of San Francisco.

THE PRESENT OWNERS of Ho Ho, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Seibert, enjoy perusing the pen and ink sketches made of that fabulous Larkspur estate by artist C. Neilson back in 1890. You, too, can view the sketches, now the property of the Marin County Historical Society Museum, by turning to pages M-12 and M-13 of this issue of your Marin Magazine.

ON THE SIDE of a hill was an old vineyard, and on top of the hill a cottage. This was immediately converted into a kitchen and dining area with a Chinese cook in charge.

Has Brouck loved people and delighted in entertaining them. Immediately he started construction of log cabins and put up tents to accommodate his guests. Eventually there were five of the one-room log cabins. Four were used as bedrooms, the fifth was known as the party room.

Donald Seibert, a nephew of Mrs. Has Brouck who lived at Ho Ho many happy years, told me about Ho Ho.

"My uncle was fascinated by the Orient although he had never been there. He named Ho Ho for a mythical Chinese bird which brings good luck. He bought many rare pieces of Chinese art, vases, figurines and such, in San Francisco's Chinatown. These he put in the party room. The Chinese pieces covered the mantel of the fireplace."

Paths trailed through the redwoods and, ever so often, there would be a picturesque bench on which to rest in the shade. A Chinese gardener wrought magic with redwood boughs, weaving them into intricate designs to ornament benches and gates. A delightful little bridge was built over a pond at the foot of the hill. Springs on the hillside supplied the estate with water which trickled from the tunnel through pipes. Seibert believes that brick clay had been dug out, forming the excavation for the pond.

ORNAMENTAL trees and shrubs were planted around the cabins. At the far end of the property were the stables. Has Brouck kept about four horses, and Donald Seibert recalls the horses being hitched up so that his mother could drive him to San Rafael. He went to the old B Street School, the first one. Sometimes he would take the train which ran in front of the estate. The station was then called Tamalpais.

During the hot summer days he raced across the marshland to swim in the canal. The water was pure then, as no waste was dumped into it.

Seibert, his mother, and brother, Roy, who had an aviary filled with choice birds, spent much time at Ho Ho. The husband and father, Jacob Seibert, of a Pennsylvania Dutch family, worked for many years for Wells Fargo. He had jobs in San Francisco and once he spent two years in Mexico City.

By 1890 Ho Ho had become a real showplace and it was then that Has Brouck commissioned artist C. Neilson to make pen sketches of the estate. These were reproduced for distribution in portfolios to friends. It was one of these portfolios that Mrs. Evers presented to the historical society.

Has Brouck always loved redwoods and log cabins. Having completed the improvements on Ho Ho, he bought 200 acres on top of the Bolinas ridge and built a two story log cabin, the top story being reached by an outside staircase. This was a weekend place.

The Has Broucks had no children but they loved youngsters and there were always plenty of them at their places. The two story cabin burned in a fire which swept over the ridge. Later Seibert built a one story log cabin on the site. It, too, was destroyed by fire.

Often passersby on the road would inquire if cabins could be rented at Ho Ho, but Has Brouck pleasantly but firmly refused to rent. It was not until after his death in 1901 that Ho Ho was ever rented. This occurred when Mrs. Has Brouck took her sister and several other relatives for a year's tour of Europe.

MRS. EVERS' parents, Dr. and Mrs. Kaspar Pischel, came over from San Francisco with their two small daughters, now Mrs. Evers and Mrs. Inez Ettelson of Sonoma, and two sons, Dr. Dohrmann K. Pischel of Ross and San Francisco and Harold Pischel of San Francisco.

The children had a marvelous time playing in the woods and swimming in the canal. Mrs. Evers particularly remembers the main cabin (party room) with its Oriental art and grand piano, and the fact that the family had three houses for bedrooms, the sisters sleeping in one log cabin, the parents in another and the boys in a third—and the cold room. This was a cellar underneath the kitchen and dining room, where fruits and vegetables were kept.

The family was so pleased with life in Marin that soon after that Dr. Pischel bought property in Ross and built a fine home there.

Seibert is a graduate of Stanford University and was claims attorney for Maryland Casualty Co. until he retired. He and Minnie E. Guynie were married in 1940 and made Ho Ho their permanent residence. After Mrs. Has Brouck died in 1943 he inherited the property. He delights to talk of old times there, of the deer which roamed the hills, and that brought up the name of Bucky of whom I had heard before.

MRS. SEIBERT'S eyes lighted up as she told of the deer they had raised from a fawn to become a household pet. On the cold nights he would stretch out in front of the fireplace to sleep. However, he loved to eat the young growth of trees and shrubs. The area around Ho Ho was rapidly building up and the neighbors complained that Bucky was feasting on their gardens. The result was that Bucky was doomed to life imprisonment. He was penned up at Ho Ho and there he met an untimely death when he was seven years old. The dogs of the neighborhood attacked the defenseless creature in his corral and killed him.

The Seiberts have made numerous improvements on the property which is now only five acres, three having been sold.

History, land development and settlement always interest me, so I learned about the beginning of the area from Mrs. Genevieve Longley of Larkspur, granddaughter of William Murray.

William Murray, born in County Cork, Ireland, in 1826 came to California in 1851 and mined in Sierra County. He went back East to return in 1854 with his bride. They had sailed to Panama, crossed the Isthmus on burros, and had boarded a ship for the voyage to San Francisco. There he put his wife and their personal effects in a white yawl and sailed across San Francisco Bay and up Corte Madera Creek to where the College of Marin is today. He and a partner built a sawmill at San Quentin for Benjamin Buckalew who had bought a large portion of Rancho Corte Madera including the section which is now Ross to the bay. William Murray had a dairy ranch at what is now Fairfax for a number of years, and right after the Civil War, he and his partner, Patrick King, bought 1,400 acres including what is today Kent Woodlands, Escalle and Larkspur.

MURRAY built the family home in 1867. The quaint old house and its old fashioned garden are in great contrast to the large homes and landscaped grounds of the neighboring homes in Kent Woodlands. A large portion of the Murray-King property was sold to Albert E. Kent for a country estate. Subsequently the partners divided the remaining land, King taking the eastern end where the town of Larkspur now is located, and Murray the other part, later to become Escalle and Kentfield.

As I talked with Mr. and Mrs. Seibert, their eyes glowed with happy memories and we conjectured as to the future of the beautiful Ho Ho. They have no children to enjoy the estate as scores of other youngsters did — and the place just seems to be meant for children, laughter, life and love.

Marin Showplace In 1890

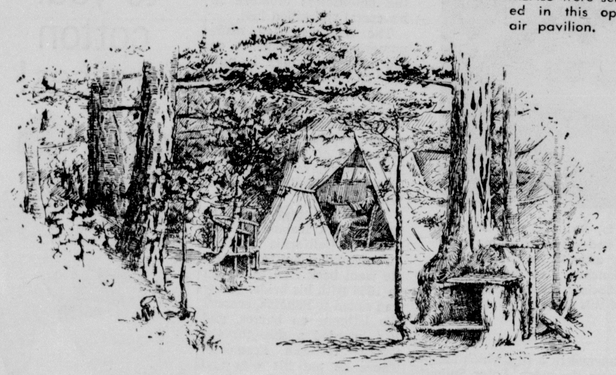

THIS IS HOW the entrance to the beautiful Ho Ho estate in Larkspur looked back in 1890 when owner Joseph Has Brouck, responsible for much of its beauty, commissioned artist C. Neilson to make a series of pen and ink sketches of the Marin showplace. Those drawing have now been presented to the Marin Historical Society's museum.

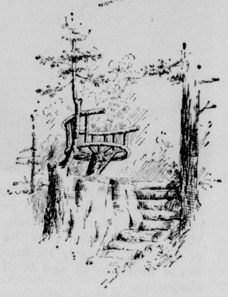

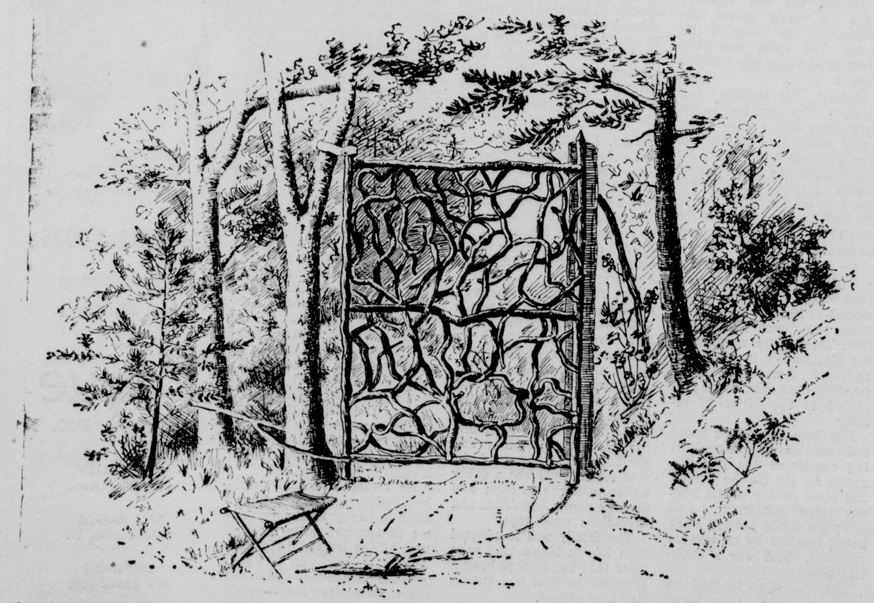

MEALS were served in this open air pavilion.

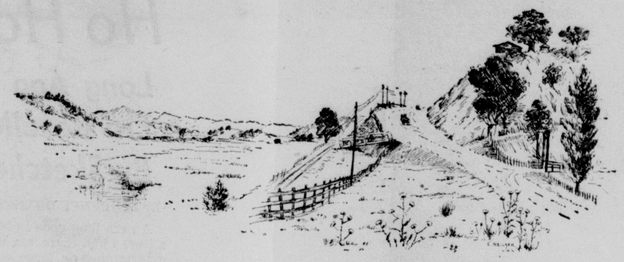

CAMPING WAS a source of great fun at Ho Ho. Five log cabins and several tents provided sleeping quarters for visitors who wanted a taste of "roughing it" without being too uncomfortable.

DELIGHTFUL rest stations along the trails of Ho Ho provided places for hikers and riders to stop off for a bit of rest and an opportunity to enjoy the fine scenery.

THIS IS A HO HO gate as drawn by artist Neilson. It is a splendid example of Oriental art. And it was typical of the man-made beauty which together with nature's splendors made the estate such a beauty spot.

MAGNOLIA AVENUE in Larkspur looked like this when artist Neilson made his sketches. Youngsters ran across the marsh to swim in the creek. The water was pure and ideal for swimming then.

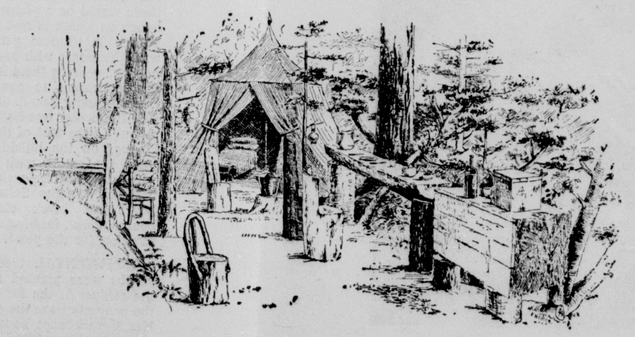

LOG CABINS on the Ho Ho estate were of many different shapes and sizes. And everywhere there were gates, again with a wide variety of different types, and trails.

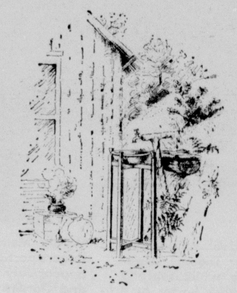

WALKS ALONG the trails among the majestic redwoods were a favorite form of recreation at Ho Ho. Visitors rested on benches such as this one. The backrest is the art work of a Chinese gardener.

HERE IS ANOTHER campsite at Ho Ho. Note particularly the chairs which were built from stumps of trees, and the other uses made of logs about the camp.

STABLED AT Ho Ho were fine horses which were saddled for rides over mountain trails, or hitched to buggies to carry the women into San Rafael for a day of shopping.

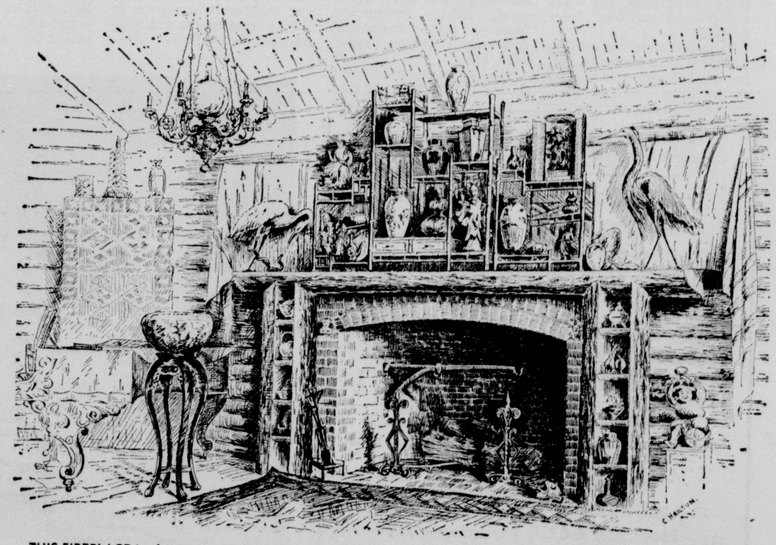

THE NATURAL BEAUTY of Ho Ho was preserved by its airiness. Note the tree growing through the roof of the porch of the log cabin.

WATER WAS no problem at Ho Ho. In lower photo is a tunnel from which a spring carrying pure water flowed. At top one of the water taps at the end of such a spring.

ABOVE THE HILLS of Ho Ho stood, and still stands, Mt. Tamalpais, a favorite view piece with Marinites then and still one today.

THIS FIREPLACE in the party room provided warmth and a friendly atmosphere for the festivities. Fine Oriental art pieces added a rich decorative touch to the room which artist Neilson's skilled touch with pen and ink also captured for posterity.

Opera Is Coming To Marin

In Europe, Germany alone has 60 opera companies that perform throughout the year.

In contrast there is not a single company in the United States that operates on a 12-month schedule.

Consequently serious young singers in this country face an uphill battle in their struggle for success in the operatic field.

But since 1954 the West Coast has been the home base of one vigorous movement dedicated to helping young singers with operatic ambitions.

The Merola Memorial Fund is a quiet, unassuming title that belies the outstanding achievements and activities it has accomplished under the leadership of a group of dedicated Bay Area opera lovers.

ITS BOARD of directors, presided over by Mrs. Starr Bruce of San Francisco, works closely with the San Francisco Opera Guild.

The fund was established as a memorial to opera's beloved Maestro Gaetano Merola the year of his death. Its aims: To discover, train and introduce outstanding professional operatic talent in the West.

A year-long survey is conducted in the seven western states under the leadership of Kurt Herbert Adler, San Francisco Opera's general director. Winners of preliminary judging go on to regional contests held in San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, and San Diego. The winners are brought to San Francisco for a day-long series of tests. An evening performance on the majestic Opera House stage accompanied by the Opera House Orchestra climaxes the big day.

They will appear as soloists with the opera company during the fall season as well as at the Stern Grove concerts.

MANY AN OPERATIC PLOT hinges on a duel, so baritone Howard Nelson of Seattle, left, and tenor Thomas Caparello of Sunnyvale practice their fencing while soprano Willene Gunn of Mountain View feigns mock horror at a Merola Memorial Training Program session. The young singers participating in the six-weeks training program will appear July 24 in the annual Opera Pops at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. (San Francisco Opera Assn. photos)

The auditioning has provided young aspirants not only with experience, but also with an opportunity to attract the attention of professional opera companies — and sometimes contracts result.

In 1952 another Merola program was launched. The Merola Memorial Training Program offers the regional audition winners plus other promising singers an opportunity to attend, without tuition cost, a six weeks course of study under the guidance of the professional San Francisco Opera staff. At present 16 singers from throughout the West are receiving this instruction on an invitational basis.

THEIR COURSES cover such subjects as stage deportment, makeup, costuming, fencing, stage movement, comparative diction, repertoire, etc.

The one subject not tackled during the six weeks is singing. Attention, instead, is directed to the other attributes which the young hopefuls, generally in their 20s, must master before they can hope for professional success in opera.

No small part of the value of the program for the aspirants lies in their opportunities to make actual stage appearances.

The Opera Pops was initiated in 1959 and held in the idyllic setting of Marin's Art and Garden Center at Ross. On July 24 at 4 p.m. the second annual Opera Pops will be held at that same place.

Most of the 16 young hopefuls now attending the training program will appear in scenes from operas and demonstrate their talents.

Informal seating and gaily decorated tables will add to the color of the event. And a champagne reception will follow the hour-long program.

Proceeds from the Opera Pops are used to continue the Merola Memorial Training program.

IN THE three previous years 47 young singers have received the benefits of the training program. As a result, 32 trainees have won contracts with the opera company. And 13 are establishing careers in Europe.

Officials point out that the program is in the tradition of Maestro Merola who as continuing director of the San Francisco Opera Company for 30 years saw it rise to a place second only to the New York Metropolitan in this country —and who always took a particular interest in furthering the careers of promising young singers.

When the 1960 Opera Pops program is staged July 24, many in the audience will have traveled far to enjoy and support the unusual program. Sponsors hope, however, that Marinites will not overlook the unusual opportunity to enjoy fine music virtually in their own backyards, and will also be present in large numbers.

Tickets are available through Mrs. A. Barlow Ferguson and Mrs. John Wolfe of Kentfield, Mrs. Edwin Sinclair of Belvedere and James Schwabacher Jr. of San Francisco.

Children up to 16 will be admitted for one dollar.

Holders of sponsor tickets are invited to attend the champagne reception that will follow the program.

FINE OBJECTS of cut glass such as these pieces were once the vogue when displayed on handsome buffets and in China closets. Now they are seen less often. But heirlooms such as these beautiful pieces still win for their proud owners comments of appreciation from guests.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Pieces Of Cut Glass Were Mark Of Distinction In Home

By F. PIERCE SHERRY

Can you remember when it was fashionable to display one's best China plates on a plate rail on the dining room walls?

Then you may also recall that it was a mark of distinction to have some pieces of genuine cut glass.

The dining room then was of sufficient proportions to accommodate family and friends to the number of 12 simply by adding two tables leaves on holidays and on other occasions when "company" came.

There was a subdivision in the kitchen where the family partook of breakfast and lunch. But for dinner at six each evening, we gathered under the stained glass lighting fixture in the reasonably formal atmosphere of the dining room.

Standard furniture included a glass front China closet and a buffet. Prominently displayed along with the silver items were the sparkling specimens of cut glass.

There was a line of imitation "cut glass" made by pressing or molding familiar designs into cheaper stock. But the brilliant elegance of the weightier crystal, into which patterns had been cut deeply by a hand-operated grinding wheel, were unmistakable.

Handed down to me were a pair of nine-inch "vahses" (so called because of their original price tag) for holding displays of sweetpeas. Also two deep bowls of 10-inch diameter for fruit, a ponderous pitcher about 12 inches tall, dishes for celery and for pickles and olives, a carafe, and a single vase for long-stem roses.

Today a piece or two of this rich cut glass judiciously displayed will evoke nostalgic reminiscences from older guests and even admiration and appreciation from the younger set not of the cut glass era.

And one feels fortunate in having such beautiful heirlooms to enjoy and to be able to share that enjoyment with others.

BOOK REVIEWS

Story Of Berlin Boy Mayor Shallow But Still Interesting

MY ROAD TO BERLIN by Willy Brandt (as told to Leo Lania), Doubleday and Company Inc., $4.50, 287 pages. Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

An interesting enough, although poorly written book, about the life and times of the boy mayor of West Berlin, Willy Brandt.

Ghosted by a German journalist, it makes sure that the 47-year-old head of Berlin is properly praised for each and every effort he has made in behalf of his country. The reader is carefully taken, with a mighty pro-U.S. and anti-Russian slant, somewhat shallowly through the war, the underground, the Hungarian revolt, post-war Berlin, the air lift-blockade fracas.

It could have been so much better if the ghoster and author spent a little more time on the feelings of the people and less on themselves and their own importance.

THE FIGHTING PARSON by Reginald S. Craig, Westernlore Press, 278 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by R. S. Johnson.

Col. John M. Chivington mercifully had faded into obscurity of the passing years and his part in the Indian wars buried by the more publicized commanders: Custer, Mackenzie, Howard, Miles, Canby and others. In the mad scramble for script material to feed the television mass of western fare, Colonel Chivington has emerged as the monster responsible for the Sand Creek Massacre.

It is timely that this book is available as a factual record (including transcripts of the Congressional investigation of the incident) of the parson-turned-soldier.

There's little doubt that Chivington was a zealot. His preachings were tinged with brimstone and there was no such thing as a minor engagement when he took troops into the field. He was commended on his leadership at Glorietta Pass against the Confederate Army; and condemned for the slaughter of women, children and old men at Sand Creek against the Cheyenne Indians.

His greatest fault was inability to maneuver himself through a maze of political ambushes that involved Indian Commission profiteering, regular army versus reserves jealousy, and Colorado factions for and against statehood.

Craig brings home the point that a war is a war, and the greatest myth in any type of war reporting is that war is played by a set of rules such as exist in a sports event.

This is the successful Broadway play on national politics. Unfortunately when you read the play, there is something missing. And you soon realize that the something missing is the talents of Melvyn Douglas, E. G. Marshall, Bert Wheeler and the other members of the play cast.

For the play form is meant for viewing and listening, not for reading. And is seldom successful as a literary instead of a dramatic vehicle. There are notable exceptions, of course, but few of our modern playwrights have that Shakesperian touch.

There is enough here to appreciate why the play was favorably received on Broadway. But as a book it does not intrigue, stimulate or engross the reader.

DELAPLANE IN MEXICO by Stanton Delaplane and Robert de Roos, Coward-McCann Inc., 250 pages, $3.95.

This is a book that has been in the bookstores now for some time, but is still enjoy ing a brisk sale.

Its appeal to two groups is apparent. There is real value for those planning trips south of the border in the way of travel tips. And those who have enjoyed Marinite Delaplane's humor in his syndicated newspaper column will find him equally entertaining here.

This is the first volume in a scheduled series of travel books by Delaplane and colleague de Roos.

HAWAII, The Aloha State by Helen Bauer, Doubleday and Company Inc., $3.50, 192 pages. Reviews by Bill Hendricks.

A pleasant enough little book, and timely too. It is designed for sub-teen-agers and recaps in simple language all the things said before about Hawaii. Plenty of illustrations and photos, nice big type, and written by a lady who has visited the island four times.

THE LAST GENTLEMAN by Shirley Barker, Random House, 341 pages, $3.95.

There is no mistaking that this book is written by a woman. The central figure is John Wentworth, the last king's governor of New Hampshire in the 1770s, but women fill it to the overflowing.

And your insight into the governor is through a woman's eyes—several really — his wife, her companion, scullery maids, a self-styled witch, etc.

Description of the times, the towns and the countryside is lengthy, explicit and interesting. However the movement drags. The story line is a little thin and not defined sharply enough.

Governor Wentworth is moved by two conflicting forces at once: by loyalty to his king, and by regard for the people of New Hampshire and their desire for independence. But you don't get a real feeling that there is "blood and guts" involved.

THIS WOOD AND COPPER sculpture piece by Sausalito's Jerry Walter will be included in the Third Pacific Coast Biennial Exhibition of sculptures and drawings, scheduled to open next Wednesday at the M. H. deYoung Memorial Museum in San Francisco. Walter's work is entitled "Sum, the Total of the Parts." The exhibition, organized and circulated by the Santa Barbara Museum, will display 49 sculptures and 69 drawings by 112 California, Oregon and Washington artists. The exhibition will remain at the San Francisco museum through August 21.

Marin Living

Strive For Harmony In Home Areas

THIS HOUSE AND garden are designed to alter as little as possible the natural features of the site. Existing trees were left. And extensive use is made of natural materials such as California redwood siding, decking and garden screens, gravel, and exposed aggregate patio areas. The interior of the house, which opens onto view deck, is made to harmonize with the garden entrance through use of redwood paneling, exposed beams and open planning of the living areas. Design is by architect Ward Thomas.

As many homeowners have discovered there's more to indoor-outdoor living than a patio and a sliding glass wall off the living area.

For the fullest enjoyment, according to many home planning experts, indoor and outdoor areas should harmonize with each other.

How is this accomplished? Here are four easy steps.

1. First—preserve the natural characteristics of the site. Build your home among existing trees, and conserve natural terrain features.

2. Choose a design, inside and out, that fits both the home site and the locality.

3. Use natural materials. Many architects and builders select an attractive, durable wood, such as California redwood, for interior paneling and ceilings, and for exterior siding. Use of redwood both inside and out strengthens the design harmony of the structure, while redwood's natural warmth and beauty help integrate house and site.

4. Now you can put in your patio, and glass wall with sliding door. Put the patio adjacent to living areas, as an outdoor living room, and let traffic move freely between the indoors and out. To help the eye and the mind move easily between inside and outside areas, use sturdy, maintenance free redwood for patio decking.

Two new color booklets are now available to homeowners seeking design and building ideas for house or garden projects. For a free copy of the new "Garden Ideas" or "Redwood Homes" booklet, write the Homeowners' Library, California Redwood Assn., 576 Sacramento Street, San Francisco 11, Calif.

Chlorine No Peril To Lawn

No need to worry about chlorine from your backyard swimming pool ruining the lawn.

Home-owners with pools—particularly the "above-ground" walled pools which some 30,000 families have purchased in the past few years—have expressed fears that water drained from these portable pools would wreck their landscaping efforts.

But the correct quantity of chlorine to keep a pool sanitary and algae-free is actually somewhat less than the chlorine content of the drinking water in many communities, says Robert A. Goodfellow, sales manager for U.S. Fiber and Plastics Corp., which manufactures pools.

Chlorine for purifying purposes is best added in the evening hours after the day's play is over, says Goodfellow. In this way the chemical has a chance to perform its cleansing action evenly overnight, without leaving "hot spots" which may make a swimmer's eyes smart.

Chlorine is available in both liquid and tablet form. A liquid solution has the edge over the tablet, in Goodfellow's opinion, because it blends more evenly throughout the pool and leaves no sediment. All forms of chlorine are absorbed by the sun's rays during the day and must be renewed regularly at so many parts to the gallon capacity of the individual pool, as recommended in the instructions with various commercial chlorine products.

THE BARBECUE and cooking unit feature a beige brick wall, natural-finish birch cabinets and ceramic tile flooring in a warm brown tone. This hospitality center for the Schloss home is incorporated in the family room.

SHADES OF BEIGE in brick and wood are set off by blossom white trim in the entry of the Ansel Schloss home at 411 Margarita Drive, San Rafael. The contractor, Custom Builders-Parnow Bros., also provided a paved parking area sufficient for 10 cars. (Photos by George Wheeler)

Hillside Home Keyed To Occupants' Needs

Starting with three acres of wooded San Rafael hillside, Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Schloss have graced that exceptional site with a spacious home built by Custom Builders-Parnow Bros. that is keyed to both the formal and informal activities of an adult household.

Located at 411 Margarita Drive, above the Country Club area, the property is part of what was once a huge estate.

"We have no intention of developing the bulk of the property," says Mrs. Schloss. "We enjoy the natural beauty so much."

Not only did Custom Builders-Parnow Bros. construct the home, patios and parking area for 10 cars, but its Custom Pools Division was also the contractor for the lavish swimming pool.

The exterior of the Schloss home is beige brick combined with wood siding painted a matching beige. Trim details are in blossom white. The soft color scheme moves indoors, as the same tones as featured in the well-planned family-living area. Beige toned brick is evident in patios and fireplace, with a complimentary beige shade chosen for the ceramic tile floor. Paneling of natural-finish birch is in a correlated shade. The shining copper hood, which extends from the kitchen cooking area to encompass the handy indoor barbecue, furnishes a change of texture and contrast in color tone.

Mrs. Schloss, who acted as her own interior decorator, chose cool white upholstered pieces to set off the living room; gleaming black table and chairs are a focal point in the dining section; and the accent color of jewel red in cushions and accessories adds verve to the entire scheme.

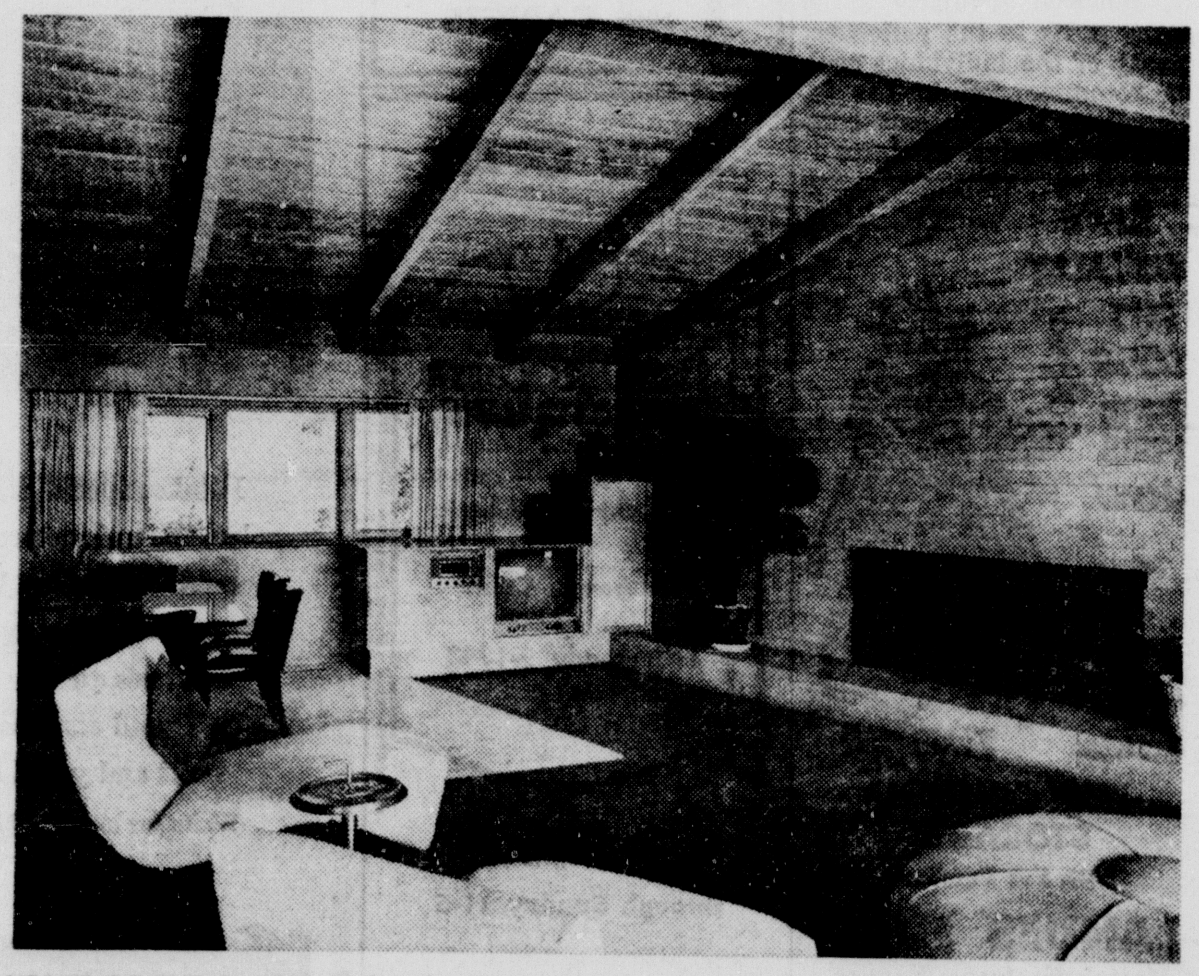

The supurb family room pictured on these pages is the hub of the pleasant easy-going Marin living which the Schlosses and their friends enjoy. In addition, they can, when they choose, entertain in the formal living room which adds another dimension to the usefulness of the home in relation to the needs of the occupants.

Mrs. Schloss' mother, Mrs. Estella LaValley, who shares the family home, has her own private bedroom suite which gives her an area, when she chooses it, completely detached from the other members of the family.

This well-designed Schloss home also affords an additional and typical Marin advantage—a magnificent view which sweeps the East Bay shoreline and includes a spectacular exposure of the Bay bridges.

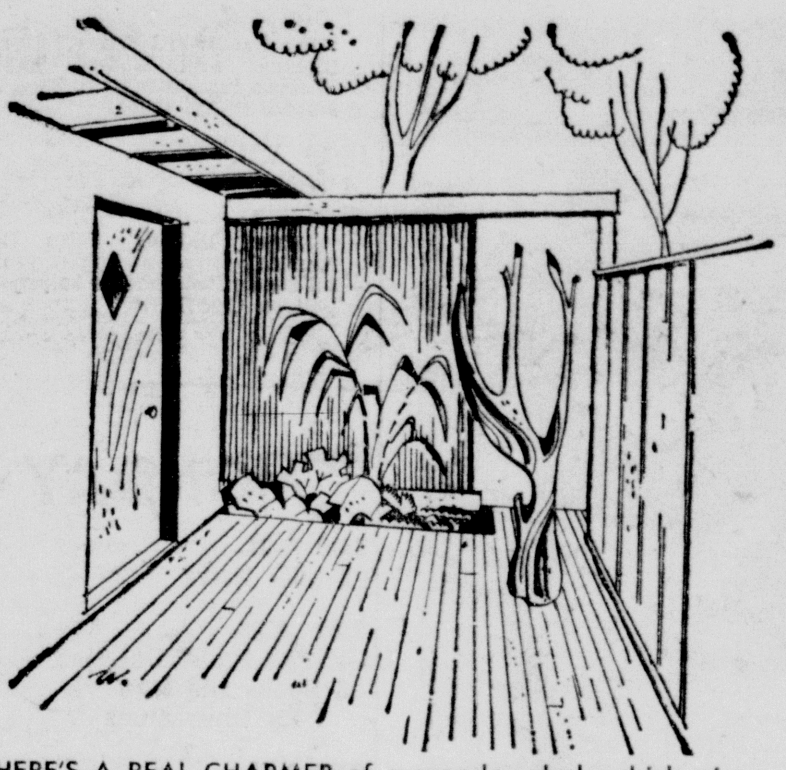

THE COMFORTABLE family room includes the dining area, and indoor barbecue and kitchen cooking unit topped by a shining copper hood. The sliding door to the left leads to the patio and pool area of the Schloss home. The house commands a splendid bay view.

HEART OF THE SPACIOUS family room of the Schloss home is the huge fireplace. The opening of the fireplace is five feet in width. Beige brick wall and beamed ceiling coordinate interior and exterior finish.

HERE'S A REAL CHARMER of a wooden deck which gives the user privacy without the feeling of being cooped in. Note the half screen at the end and the low screen in front. Deck is made of sturdy Douglas fir.

Outdoor Living Triggers Craze For Wooden Decks

In a few short years, the deck has become an accepted part of many homes. The amazing popularity of this outdoor living facility unquestionably stems from the great increase in oudoor living.

Today, when the landscape architect starts on a basic plan for landscaping a home, whether old or new, chances are he will start with a deck. The deck is a permanent structure, and generally rather large, so it is much easier to plan around it.

Decks come in every conceivable size and shape. A home may have one or half a dozen, with bedrooms having their own private sun bathing and lounging decks.

The wood deck actually is an extension of the indoor living area, so good planning calls for it to be at floor level, easily accessible from either living and family room and preferably near the kitchen. Often-times the deck and living room are separated merely by a glass wall which opens up wide to join the two rooms into one large living area.

Many decks are planned by the architect when the home is planned, but decks are being added to older homes with more and more frequency.

The deck is inexpensive by modern building standards and fairly easy to construct. It provides a greatly expanded living area without calling for any change in the home itself.

The decks may be simple diagonal affairs without any trim. Or they may be complex curved shapes enclosing sand boxes and wading pools for the small fry. Some are shaped in triangles, trapazoids and other exciting forms to add to the charm and promise of the home.

There are just a few simple rules that should be observed when a deck is being designed. Be sure the framework is sturdy. Supporting posts should be at least four-by-four inches and should rest on concrete blocks to prevent moisture absorption from the ground. The frame itself should be made of joists which may range in size from two by eight to two by 12 inches. The deck can be, and generally is, made of two by fours, but two by sixes and two by eights are sometimes used.

Probably the most popular material to use for the deck is Douglas fir lumber because it is tough, will wear long and is strong.

Deck boards should be spaced slightly to permit water runoff and to facilitate hosing off when cleaning. Some designers turn the two by fours on edge and this makes an attractive deck surface.

Sometimes the deck boards are placed in four- and six-foot squares and the boards in adjoining squares are laid diagonally to give a checkerboard effect.

Some men who enjoy golf and other sports and don't want to be bothered with lawn and garden upkeep use the deck as a perfect ground cover. A deck doesn't have to be moved. The deck is also a boon to those homeowners who have rocky or untillable land in their yards.

Most decks are left to weather to soft silvery grays, but they may be painted or stained to suit the tastes of the homeowners.

Benches and tables can be permanently installed on the deck and can be made of the same wood as the deck. Sometimes benches with backs are built around the perimeter of high decks to serve as a guard rail.

Plants That Thrive In Stingy Soil

According to the California Assn. of Nurserymen, there are many plants which will do well in stingy soil—one which is lacking in nutrients.

Ice Plant, for example, is a ground cover which actually prefers sterile soil. Sun-loving, heat and drought tolerant Ice Plant is surely one of the showiest plants in the garden in proportion to its minimum growth requirements. Its daisy-like flowers (in all colors except blue) are so prolific and colorful that the effect is blindingly beautiful. Various types are annuals, evergreen perennials, and succulents. When bought in nursery-established flats, they will make luxuriant draperies for sunny wall or bank; or lush carpeting for seldom - watered marginal areas or dry, sandy spots around country homes.

Rugged Rockrose is another which prefers poor, lean soil. This time of year it is gloriously abloom with large white flowers with dark crimson spots at the base of each petal. A low to medium growing shrub, Rockrose has further virtues of adaptability to hot sun and desert conditions; will flourish in reach of salt spray and ocean winds; and when established, is drought-resistant. Many varieties are obtainable at nurseries.

Logically, a native plant of any particular locale will thrive in that environment, no matter how poor the soil. Therefore, as a general rule, native California plants will perform well in situations where few other plants will live. Another fact to their credit, they are obtainable at all nurseries.

Wild Lilac (in many forms) has been cultivated to meet the home-garden requisites of any problem spot within reason. The range in forms is from carpets to trees; and the range in flower colors is from white to heavenly indigo blue. About 44 species are native to the state. As a quick, showy cover for a bank of stingy soil (and one which is difficult to fertilize), Point Reyes and Carmel varieties of Wild Lilac make quick, lovely-to-look-at covers.

Women Who Love Their Home .....
Come to Bellach's

A home is more than a thing of beauty — it is the very heart of comfort and contentment for your loved ones and your friends. Women who love their homes consider furnishings of both beauty and function in making home life most casual and enjoyable thru the years. Although you may choose the most formal in furnishings at the same time you should strive for an atmosphere that's truly welcoming, which is quite possible to achieve in furniture of any period or combination of styles. You can put "heart" into your home by merely adding simple, carefully chosen accessories.

At Bellach's you will find large displays of America's finest creations in furniture, floor coverings, and draperies — and at prices that are remarkably low.

GLAMOUR QUEEN Lillian Russell and Soldier-statesman Teddy Roosevelt are just two of the colorful and contrasting figures who will be seen in the repeat showing of NBC-TV's Project 20 one-hour special, "The Innocent Years." The show, to be seen Monday at 10 p.m. on KRON-TV (Channel 4) takes a backward and fascinating look at the United States from 1900 to 1917.

CHECKING the CHANNELS

With HAL CASE

THE PRODUCER of NBC-TV's fine Project 20 series, Donald B. Hyatt, takes note of increasing unrest among television viewers and critics with the repeats which flood TV screens during summer months.

Criticism, he contends, should not be directed at all such repeat showings, but only at those that are repeated "not because of their distinction or artistic worth, but for economic causes which are no measure of art or entertainment."

Hyatt has a point. There should be no automatic groans just because the word "repeat" is attached to a show—providing the program is worthy of repetition.

Hyatt's own fine series is slated for re-showing this summer beginning with "The Innocent Years," 1900 to 1917 in the U. S., this coming Monday night on KRON-TV (Channel 4). "The Jazz Age," "Life in the '30s," and "Not So Long Ago" will follow on Aug. 5, Aug. 29, and Sept. 12 respectively.

Those who did not see these excellent shows the first time around should welcome a second opportunity. And those who have already viewed them may still enjoy a second look.

Says Hyatt: "TV can be artistic, and all art should have a permanence. When you put on a show that takes a year to make, not everyone can capture the whole message in one viewing."

Unfortunately for viewers, shows of Project 20 caliber are few and far between among the repeats. Most programs being shown on TV screens these days for the second, third and umpteenth time, should never have been aired the first time around.

KTVU-TV (Channel 2) is mighty proud of the new look on its "Sherwood As Is" show.

The new set, according to the station, is almost an exact replica of star Don Sherwood's Nob Hill apartment complete to the view of San Francisco and East Bay lights.

So far we've viewed the results with mixed reactions. When Sherwood's guests are articulate and have something to say, the conversations have been interesting—and even stimulating. Outspoken Jim Kerchanski of Marin's Three R School was especially effective in his discussion of educational trends. Right or wrong, we have no doubt that he startled a great many viewers into a realization of the importance of the issues at stake in the current debate in education.

Jimmy Lyons, the Monterey Jazz Festival director, also proved to be an interesting guest.

Some other "callers" have had less to say, and consequently on such evenings the program has dragged.

We are happy to hear that while musical entertainment will be downgraded somewhat on the show as a result of the "new look," it will not be eliminated. This despite Sherwood's own rap at some of his past musical guests—"some of them have been pretty bad."

Actually, we have found such guest performers to have been generally of a surprisingly high caliber. KTVU-TV has been fortunate in being able to draw its talent for the show from the Bay Area nightclub pool. And San Francisco nightspots represent a rich vein of entertainment big names—and of lesser names on their way to the top.

No small reward from watching the show for us has been the frequent appearances of comic Ronnie Schell, who in our opinion is one of the funniest men alive.

Regardless of the format, KTVU and host Sherwood deserve commendation for keeping the show, just about the only locally-produced program of its kind to be seen in the Bay Area, going, and the quality generally high. It has also made the colorful Sherwood, who can be almost embarrassingly bad, even crude, on an off-night but hilarious on a good night—and the good ones come more frequently than the bad ones—one of the Bay Area's few true television "personalities."

Sherwood has voiced frequently a threat to retire from the entertainment ranks. But sources at the station tell us that such statements are not taken seriously there, and that it is the opinion there that Sherwood will remain in "show biz" for a good many years to come.

One result of the new format for the Sherwood show is that the size of the studio audience has been cut nearly in half. Tickets, however, can still be ordered from KTVU's ticket department on a "waiting list" basis.

PROOF THAT repeats are not the only answer to television's summer programming problems is being offered by ABC-TV which is using ingenuity instead, in coming up with a replacement for its Ernie Kovacs panel show.

Starting Aug. 4 "Silents Please" will be seen at 10:30 p.m. on Thursday evenings on KGO-TV (Channel 7).

It will consist of half-hour excerpts from silent movies. Included will be episodes from Rudolph Valentino's "Son of the Sheik," Buster Keaton and the Keystone Cops in "The General" and "The Great Stone Face," D. W. Griffith's classic "Intolance," and Pearl White and Ruth Roland in their serial thrillers.

The result will be nostalgia and reawakened memories for those old enough to remember the movies before they talked—the days of the W. S. Harts, Gish Sisters, Chaplins and Clara Bows. And for those not that old, we suspect the result will be a great deal of enlightenment and considerable entertainment.
